CIVIL WAR IN AUSTRIA

Accession of Archduke Ferdinand to Power Is Marked by Furious Fighting Throughout the Empire—Servians Defeat Austrian Troops.

VIENNA, via frontier, Dec. 1.—The burning of Emperors William and Franz Josef in effigy, the trampling of the German flag and the cheering of the country's enemies are to-day the scenes in scores of Austrian towns, resulting from the bitter race war between the German element of the population and rival nationalities that is sweeping this half of the dual empre. The agitation amounts to revolution.

The race wars are country-wide in scope and are assuming an increasingly violent character.

In many towns the anti-German element are parading the streets, denouncing the present dynasty and promising to join the enemy in the event of a civil war.

The Archduke Ferdinand practically becomes Emperor to-morrow, superseding Franz Joseph, his aged father, and it is feared the situation will become even more grave.

The disorders are general throughout Austria-Hungary but are particularly serious at Prague and Trieste, where the Czechs and Italians are engaging in hand-to-hand fights with the Germans and are resisting the police. There are reports of numerous killings, most of the victims being shot in revolver duels.

The government authorities are doing everything possible to suppress all news of the outbreaks, but it is known that in several places troops have been called out to aid the local police in restoring order.

There were further vague rumors to-day of fighting between Austrians and Servians on the border between Bosnia and Servia. The Thirty-fourth Austrian Infantry is reported as having been ambushed and suffering heavy losses.

CRUISER HURRIED TO HAYTI

Des Moines Joins Warships at Capital Threatened by the Revolutionary Army.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, Dec. 1.—The American cruiser Des Moines steamed into the harbor to-day, dropped her anchor near the United States cruiser Tacoma, which had preceded her. Her arrival augments the number of foreign warships here to five, the others being the British cruiser Scylla, the Italian cruiser Fieramosca and the French cruiser Duguay Trouin, now at Petit Gave, but a few miles distant.

It was reported this morning that General Simon, the leader of the revolutionary movement, was at Petit Goave, about thirty miles to the west of Port au Prince. He has with him an army of 6000 men, well armed with good rifles, and well provisioned. He has also several pieces of mountain artillery and a number of machine guns. He is expected to reach Port au Prince Thursday or Friday at the latest and it is reported that he undoubtedly will make an attempt to bombard the city if the government forces put up a fight.

Rumor Alexis Will Retire.

There is a strong belief among the people of the city that President Alexis is on the point of retiring from office and naming General Turenne Jean Gilles as his successor. General Gilles is a favorite of General Alexis and represents his policies, which he probably would carry out.

The government troops are encamped outside Port au Prince ready to give battle to the invaders, but the rumor of disloyalty among the army of President Alexis has further increased the fears of the terror stricken population.

Officials Removed.

The President himself has become suspicious of some of his troops, and even questioned the loyalty of General Campeau, chief of police, and General Nau, also connected with the police.

On this account he has dispatched General Campeau on an errand outside the city, and has replaced Nau with General Hyacinthe, who is now virtually in charge of the department.

Hourly the fears of the residents of Port au Prince have grown, and even the presence of foreign warships in the harbor with others reported to be on the way, has failed to allay the fright of the Haytians. Every foreign resident has stuck up a pole on his house or shop and hoisted the flag of his country thereon, hoping thus to protect his place from pillage should the rebels take the city.

The French schoolship Duguay Trouin also left here for Petit Goave, in response to constant appeals from the foreign residents to protect their countrymen in that town.

President Alexis has again refused to leave the country. He declares that he had been through revolutions before and was confident that he would be successful in this one.

He suspects that there will be some desertions of supposed loyal Haytian troops to General Simon's army. On this account a close watch is being kept on the troops here, and at the first sign of treachery they will be shot down.

New Uprising Feared.

It is also feared that there will be a rising of citizens in the city for the purpose of overthrowing the Government just as soon as General Simon's troops get within striking distance of Port au Prince.

Soldiers on whom President Alexis believes he can rely are being retained in the barracks to meet just such an emergency and they will give short shrift to civilian traitors.

The government losses at Anse a Veau on Friday and the rout of the loyal troops have caused consternation among the officials of the government with possibly the sole exception of President Nord Alexis.

RAILROAD MEN IN DISPUTE ON WRECK SIGNAL

Engineer Thomas Whicher and Fireman George E. Lord have testified at the investigation of the wreck near the South Station on Saturday evening, it was learned this afternoon, that a green signal was displayed near the Dover street bridge. This meant a free track.

The signalman has claimed that he displayed a red signal and that the engineer ran by it. Superintendent Martin of the railroad, who is conducting the investigation at the South Station, said that he believed they would finish this afternoon and that he might be able to give out a statement as to the result.

HALE MRS. JACK IN SEIZURE OF ART TREASURES

Government Orders Back Bay Woman to Appear in Chicago Dec. 3.

The priceless art collection and curios, the property of Mrs. "Jack" Gardner of Boston, which were confiscated when Mrs. Emily Crane Chadbourne of Chicago brought them into the country as "household goods," were seized in Chicago.

Mrs. Chadbourne and Mrs. Gardner have been ordered to appear before the United States Customs Department in Chicago on December 3 and show cause why the property should not be appropriated by the government.

Mrs. Chadbourne listed the magnificent collection as "household effects" at a value of $8,000. A Chicago appraiser valued them at $82,411. Mrs. Chadbourne was compelled by the Department of Justice to pay the regular duty on goods to this amount, in all $29,203, and a fine of $41,205 for smuggling. This amounted in all to $70,409, but the goods still remained in the custody of the government, which to-day formally seized them as the result of its recent suit to secure the ownership of them.

Mrs. Gardner in the meantime has done nothing at all. She admits that the valuable collection of paintings, bric-a-brac, tapestries and curios are all her property, but she has all along disclaimed any knowledge of how they came to be brought to this country by her friend, Mrs. Chadbourne.

Under the law, she seems to be helpless to recover her property unless she goes into the general auction or has an agent go and bid in the treasures which she already owns, but which through the alleged zeal of her friend, Mrs. Chadbourne, she has lost.

Mrs. Gardner says she has been gathering the collection for some years in Europe and had stored them in Paris. Just why Mrs. Chadbourne should bring them to America has never been explained. Mrs. Chadbourne is a wealthy society woman of Chicago and personal friend of Mrs. Gardner.

To-day's action by the government is the last in a long line of proceedings, in which Mrs. Gardner has been the loser and the United States Government the gainer. She has paid enormous sums and duties on her art treasures for her museum.

HOPE TO EVEN UP FOR FOOTBALL BET

When the next Harvard-Yale football game rolls around, Richard Green of Green's shipyard in Chelsea and "Jim" Mayes, collector for the Commercial Towboat Company, say they won't have to pay for the dinner and the theatre box they lost on the last game to George Woolley and Howard V. Redgate, superintendent and cashier of the Commercial Towboat Company. After the final 4—0 result was in, Mayes and Green paid for a beefsteak dinner at the Cecil and then all went to the theatre. Woolley and Redgate insisted on going to "Hook of Holland," saying something with "hook" in it was most appropriate for the losers.

MME. STEINHEIL IN COLLAPSE AT FAURE'S DEATH

Friend of Accused French Woman Defends Her from Sensational Charge.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Mme. Steinheil took the centre of the stage in person to-day when Magistrate Andre began his examination of her and repeated her story of the murder of her husband and mother, Mme. Jappy, last May. The prosecution builds great hopes on the result of this examination, inasmuch as the widow is reported to be breaking down from the terrors of her solitary confinement in the prison of St. Lazare.

She seemed much stronger to-day, however, than when first arrested and has recovered somewhat that marvelous poise which has enabled her to withstand the assaults of the entire Paris detective experts. In accordance with French law, the only persons present at the examination are Magistrate Andre and his clerk. The representatives of the prosecutor's and detective office are in waiting to act upon any revelations that may be made.

"In Robes of Flame."

In explaining her positon, to-day, Mme. Steinheil said:

"I was going mad. I was enveloped in robes of flame which burned, but I was unable to tear them off. I was constantly compelled to follow this thread or that; all leading nowhere.

"Then I brought accusations against innocent men, thinking this the only means to force the discovery of the real culprits. Now I'm misunderstood and completely lost because the people won't believe the story of my reasons for doing as I have done."

M. Steinheil's body was re-interred to-day in L'Hay Cemetery.

M. Marlott, the former friend of Mme. Steinheil, declares absolutely false the sensational story about her being in President Faure's company, in her own salon when he died. He says that Mme. Steinheil returned home that day in a state of utter nervous collapse, caused by the news of Faure's death.

The first ray of light shed on the motive of Mme. Steinheil for attempting to throw the blame for the murder of her husband and mother on Couillard, the chauffeur, came to-day. Instead of being a wild plan evolved in a frightened brain, it is declared to have been part of a deep laid plot.

Cast Blame on Chauffeur.

Fearing that she might be suspected, she had a pearl taken from a ring and placed it in a pocketbook of her husband. Then, after the crime, she hid the pocketbook in a coat that the chauffeur had worn the day before the tragedy.

It was announced to-day that Mme. Steinheil's counsel, M. Aubin, will retire from the case. The superficial reason given for this is that he took up the case prior to the criminal indictment, but that he now prefers to turn it over to a special Assize Court advocate, as he is not versed in that class of work.

The Libre Parole, an anti-Semitic journal, is still keeping up the cry that Felix Faure, who died in this city in 1899, was the victim of a political murder because he intended to refuse the request for a retrial of the Dreyfus case. It claims now that Adolphe Steinheil, who was found dead in his residence in Paris last May, was murdered with the connivance of his wife and the political police.

The object of the murder, the paper declares, was to obtain possession of certain letters written by M. Faure, which, the paper alleges, compromise men now active in public life.

Continuing, the Libre Parole says that Steinheil was fully conversant with his wife's manner of life, and that he had possession of papers for which he demanded $200,000. This sum was considered exorbitant, and consequently an arrangement was perfected with Madame Steinheil to burglarize the house, she to take advantage of the occasion to rid herself of her husband.

KELLOGG CORNERS OIL KING ARCHBOLD

"TRUST BUSTER" GETS WITNESS IN A HOLE REGARDING FAMOUS DEAL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Tangled wires beset the progress of John D. Archbold, the star letter writer of Standard Oil Company during the last half hour in the inquisitorial chair in the hearing of the federal dissolution suit against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, before United States Commissioner Ferriss to-day.

Goaded into desperation by the relentless prodding of Federal Prosecutor Kellogg, Archbold floundered about in a whirlpool of unpleasant memories. At the first sign of danger Archbold rushed behind the skirts of his attorneys and feigned ignorance.

Developing the acquaintance of the little manipulator of Standard Oil's conjury with James McDonald of London, the government attorney harked back to an incident which held no charms for the unwilling witness.

McDonald was the former manager of the Anglo-American Oil Company, a marketing constituent of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, but went over to the General Industrial Development Syndicate, Limited, of London, about the time that corporation acquired all the stock of the Manhattan Oil Company.

Dragging out the testimony of McDonald in a previous hearing, Attorney Kellogg called attention to a loan of $3,000,000 by the Standard Oil Company to McDonald about this time.

His Memory Fails Him.

Archbold couldn't remember such a trifling sum being loaned to McDonald.

"Then why is the loan recorded on the American books of the Anglo-American Company?" demanded Attorney Kellogg.

"I don't recall that it is recorded on the American books of the company," answered Mr. Archbold.

"Who would know?"

"I don't think I could say," answered the witness.

"Will you find out?"

"If I am ordered to do so by my counsel," replied the witness.

"Will you produce the English books of that corporation, so we may get at the bottom of this loan?" asked the government.

"I have no right to do that."

"What has?"

"I don't really know."

The Federal trust buster then inquired whether or not this loan wase made to acquire the stock of the Manhattan Oil Company.

The noon adjournment saved the witness, for the time being from an embarrassing situation.

Attorney Rosenthal, Archbold's counsel, first put some questions to him.

The witness recited the story told by John D. Rockefeller regarding the recall of stocks in the corporations made parties to the dissolution and the issuance of stock certificates in substitution. He said many of the small stockholders were very loath to exchange their stock for the certificates.

"So, it is true," remarked Attorney Rosenthal, "the stockholders who turned in their stock received in reality an assignment of legal interest rather than a certificate transferring the trust certificate to the several industries?"

The witness nodded an affirmative and acquiesced in the remark of his counsel that the stock of the constituent companies of the trust agreement was of no recognized intrinsic value in the financial market.

The witness affirmed that he served in the final offices of the trustees in transferring the stock liquidated by the Ohio dissolution suit to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and increase of the capital stock of that corporation to $110,000,000.

CORPORATIONS TO BE FAVORED IN MESSAGE?

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The President's message to Congress next week shows a great reversal of his feelings toward corporations, strongly advocates repeal of the Sherman anti-trust laws, and urges legislation permitting railroads to agree on rates and combinations for the benefit of the country. It is considered a great bull document by some of those who have been bitterly attacked by the present administration.

EXPECT SHIPMENTS OF GOLD THIS WEEK

Inquiries at the New York Assay Office to-day, regarding the supply of gold suitable for export and the 10 point advance in rates for sterling is considered as a sign of gold shipment this week.

As this has long been expected and money remains plentiful with the local rate at 2 per cent, its effect on the market will not be much noticed.

KEEFE GIVEN IMMIGRATION CHIEF'S POST

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Daniel J. Keefe of Detroit, president of the Longshoremen's Union, and an active worker for the Republican cause during the recent campaign, was to-day appointed commissioner-general of immigration, to succeed the late Frank P. Sargent.

Mr. Keefe has been prominently identified with labor for a number of years and had but recently relinquished the office of sixth vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, declining to stand for re-election at the Denver convention.

GOV. GUILD GUEST OF WOBURN LEAGUE

Governor Guild was the guest of the Woburn Progress League to-day, and at 12 o'clock he unfurled a new State flag, which is the gift of the league to the city of Woburn's new High School that has been built by the city at an expense of $150,000. The program to-day consisted of the presentation of the flag of the Commonwealth by Samuel W. Mendum, president of the Woburn Progress League and himself a past principal of the school. The flag was accepted by George W. Low, principal of the school.

M'GREGOR IS CHEERED BY ST. ANDREW'S MEN

With Carnegie, Boston Man Shares Honors at Banquet in New York.

CHEER DAY OF GOOD WILL

Alexander McGregor of Boston and Andrew Carnegie divided the honors as the principal speakers at the annual dinner of the St. Andrew's Society in New York last night. William Jardine, vice-president of the Gilchrist company, went with Mr. McGregor. Mr. McGregor, who is treasurer of the Houghton & Dutton Co., is president of the Scots Charitable Society of Boston, of which Mr. Jardine is a member.

Mr. Carnegie was in fine form, and before he ended his twenty minutes' address he had put bonny Scotland at the head of the list of nations. If there be any virtue which did not originate in the "Land o' Cakes" Mr. Carnegie failed to enumerate it. In part he said:

The "Laird of Skibo" enumerated the Scots' fight for religious liberty, their battles for political liberty and their crusades for good education for all.

"These are three things that Scotland has given—to this country. But we are bound to say that this country has improved on the lessons. In political matters we here choose our chief ruler. We have here complete religious liberty, but in elementary education Scotland is the equal of America and of any one."

Great Debt to Hamilton.

Mr. McGregor was cheered when he rose to respond to the toast of the sister societies. He said he brought the greeting of his society, the oldest charitable institution on the continent. It was founded in 1657. Mr. McGregor among other things said:

"Each day impresses me with the fact that, while the social features of this and kindred societies is altogether admirable, stimulating and important, yet after all it is the philanthropic and altruistic feature that must and ought to be supreme.

Mr. Carnegie referred to the work of Alexander Hamilton, "A Scott transplanted into a republican soil," which, he said, surely improved the native Scot. To Hamilton and to Judge Wilson, Mr. Carnegie said this country owed an unpayable debt.

"A Scot finds nothing inconsistent or conflicting in his love for the adopted country," concluded the ironmaster. "The first is the mother, the second, the wife —and may any son of Scotland perish who forgets his devotion to either."

"There is nothing finer in life than faithfully living up to the tenets of the golden rule, 'Do unto others as you would be done by.' There is nothing more satisfying in life than just emulating the spirit of Him who said, 'I was sick and yet visited me; naked and ye clothed me; in hunger and ye fed me; in prison and he succored me.'

"It is a splendid sign of the times to see the friendly spirit existing between the sister societies. There is no rivalry save that of good works, no envy save that for increased power for doing good, no clashing save that two would aid where but one is needed. We may be English, Scotch or Irish by birth or extraction, but above all else we are Americans.

Hasten Day of Good Will.

"God hasten the day when all national animosities shall be forgotten and only national sympathy and good will shall remain."

Other speakers of the evening were General Leonard Wood, E. Theodore Martin, Irving Bacheller, Julius M. Mayer and Harry Lauder. Lauder responded to the toast "Honest Men an' Bonnie Lassies," General Wood to the "Army and Navy."

Among those present were John Reid, E. Theodore Mayer and George A. Fleming, all well-known Scotch singers, who enlivened the evening with ballads; Robert Foulis, Frank W. McLaughlin, Rev. David G. Wylie, Lieutenant-Colonel Allan C. Bakewell, Dr. Neil MacPhatter, Rev. Dr. Anthony H. Evans, Everett Jansen Wendell, General John T. Lockman, Edgar L. Marston, Rev. George Alexander, Robert C. Ogden, Courtenay Walter Bennett, British Consul-General at New York; J. Edward Simmons, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Rear Admiral Caspar F. Goodrich, U. S. N.

FAIR WARNING

Be Careful Not to Put Secret Preparations on Your Hair.

The day is going, and going fast, and going forever, when unscrupulous men can openly humbug and defraud the public with fake preparations for the hair. The day is close at hand when no sane man or woman will put anything on their hair or head unless they know exactly what it is. People are realizing more and more that hair and scalp troubles generally are overcome by simply keeping the head clean. Dandruff, as a rule, is a condition arising from neglect to cleanse the scalp regularly with the proper cleanser. From the pores of the scalp there comes an oily secretion, together with used-up cells and other waste matter that Nature is through with and throws off. The oily secretion is intended to keep the scalp soft and the hair lustrous. But the trouble is that dust, dirt and disease germs float around in the air and settle on this oily matter, which holds them fast. In a short time scales or dandruff form on the scalp and the pores become clogged. The hair roots do not receive the proper nourishment and soon the hair falls out, sometimes so badly that baldness is only a little way off. You resort to hair "tonics," "invigorators" and "growers," but the trouble remains just the same. In time you try everything of the sort you hear of, and in the end you realize that your money has been thrown away. Soaps and shampoos generally do not help you, because they remove the oily secretions, leave the scalp and hair dry, and rob them of the very thing Nature intended to soften the scalp and give lustre to the hair. There is sold in the drug stores a preparation called Birt's Head Wash that is widely favored because the ingredients of which it is made are printed on each package. They are as follows: Refined Soap, Glycerin, White of Eggs, Salicylic Acid and Cochin Cocoanut Oil. Be sure and show this formula to your doctor or druggist, and ask his opinion of it. The Cochin Cocoanut Oil in Birt's Head Wash takes the place of the oily secretion supplied by Nature. When you are through using this Head Wash, your Hair will be lustrous and your scalp soft, smooth and clean. Follow this rule: Don't put a drop of anything on your head unless you know exactly what it is, and your hair troubles will be a thing of the past. Price 50 cents.

LIGHT VOTES MARK CLOSE CITY FIGHTS

PITTSFIELD, Dec. 1.—The vote here to-day is very light. The drift is towards Mayor W. H. McGinnis for re-election, and [illegible] 250 plurality. Alderman W. J. Baughman lost strength by advocating freight franchises to the city railways. [illegible]

MARLBORO, Dec. 1.—John J. Shaughnessy, fusion candidate of Democrats and Independents, has apparently the best of the contest for Mayor against General Henry Parsons, now running for his fourth term. The fight on license is close. Last year license won by 500.

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 1.—The one issue here is "license" or "no-license," with the latter having the advantage. Mayor William J. Bullock is standing for re-election on a citizens' ticket, and John W. [illegible], a merchant, on a people's party ticket. The fight is close.

WALTHAM, Dec. 1.—Not more than two-thirds of the vote for Taft is being polled. Mayor Edward A. Walker will be re-elected and the city will declare again for no license.

QUINCY, Dec. 1.—The fight against the liquor interests monopolizes attention here. No-license appears to have a safe majority as for 25 years. The fight on Mayor is close.

NORTHAMPTON, Dec. 1.—A bigger vote than Taft got is being polled. The license advocates are fighting with desperation. Their 332 majority of last year will be diminished very much or wiped out. Mayor James W. O'Brien, Democrat, will probably be re-elected over ex-Mayor John L. Mather. The referendum vote for a new city hall will defeat that project.

ANOTHER STRIKE ON LYNN COURTHOUSE

A strike took place to-day on the new $40,000 courthouse in process of construction in Lynn. Seven roofers employed by John D. Bee & Sons quit work because there were nonunion workmen employed on the building. John D. Bee and his three sons, John D., Jr., James and George, are now doing the roofing themselves.

LIFE OF A PIMPLE

Complexions Are Cleared and Pimples Disappear Overnight Without Trouble.

The dispensers of poslam, a new skin discovery, ask that notice be given that no one is urged to purchase it without first obtaining an experimental package. Those who have tried it will find that the fifty-cent box, on sale at Riker-Jaynes drug stores, drug dept. Houghton & Dutton's and all drug stores, is sufficient to cure the worst cases of eczema, where the surface affected is not too large. The itching ceases on first application. It will also cure acne, tetter, blotches, scaly scalp, hives, barber's and every other form of itch, including itching feet. Being flesh-colored and containing no grease, the presence of poslam on exposed surfaces, such as the face and hands, is not perceptible. Water and soap cannot be used in connection with it, as these irritate and prolong skin troubles, sometimes even causing them.

As to the experimental package of poslam, it can be had free of charge by mail of the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York. It alone is sufficient to clear the complexion overnight, and to rid the face of pimples in twenty-four hours.

SHOT TO WARD KNIFE THRUST, STROZZI CLAIM

Attorney for Defendants in Death Trial Indicates Line of Defence.

POLICE OFFICER ON STAND

That Peter J. Wilson had a knife and made an attack upon Salvatore Strozzi will be the defence offered in the trial of pretty Marie Strozzi and her husband for the alleged slaying of Wilson was indicated today in the East Cambridge court by the line of cross-examination of witnesses pursued by Lawyer Peter S. Maher, attorney for the accused couple.

It is claimed that an open knife was found under the body of the dying man when he was picked up in the street. Walter Reed, a patrolman, who found the dying man, having been attracted to the spot by the sound of a shot, was the first witness to-day. In cross-examination Mr. Maher tried to bring out that Reed knew about the finding of the knife but had not testified to the fact before the grand jury.

In his direct examination Reed said:

"The shooting occurred on the night of March 24. I was called to No. 91 Somerville avenue by the sound of a shot. When I reached the house I found Wilson lying on the sidewalk before No. 91. I telephoned for two men and the ambulance. When they arrived Wilson was taken to the hospital. After that I began to search for the man who did the shooting. At Strozzi's house I met two other officers, Sergeant Harmon and Patrolman Kennedy. Strozzi was partially undressed, while his wife was in bed. Officer Kneeland took a revolver out of a bureau drawer and kept it.

Found Empty Shell.

"The next day I searched about the premises and in an alleyway under one of Strozzi's windows I found an empty shell, 38 calibre. It fitted the revolver. I noticed that a pane of glass in the window above the spot where the shell was found had ben broken."

The trial is being conducted in the same court room where Charles L. Tucker was tried for the murder of Mabel Page of Weston.

Mrs. Strozzi is perhaps the prettiest woman ever tried in Cambridge for a serious crime. She is also one of the best dressed women who ever appeared in this court as a defendant and all eyes seem to be centred on her.

She is a native of France, her birthplace being Paris. She is twenty-six years old. In court she was dressed in a black silk pleated skirt and white silk waist, with much lace insertion.

She wore a long blue coat and a blue hat trimmed with blue wings, tinted with green and gray. She wore a long blue veil, which, during the trial, was thrown back over her hat, with elbow tan gloves.

Smith's Story of Snooting.

The defence of the couple, as outlined by their attorney, Peter S. Maher, will be self-defence.

District Attorney John J. Higgins claims that the shooting of Wilson was without provocation—that he was on his way to his home, No. 109 Somerville avenue, when the shooting occurred.

The only eye witness to the shooting and the chief witness for the government witness is Simon J. Smith of No. 14 Everett street, Cambridge, who lived at No. 85 Somerville avenue at the time of the shooting.

"I was asleep in bed," Smith testified, "and was awakened by loud voices under my window about 11:15 o'clock on the night of March 24 last. I opened my window to see what the trouble was.

"On the sidewalk below I saw Mr. and Mrs. Strozzi, John T. Callahan of Linwood street; Mr. Wilson, a Miss Jones and another young man who was with her. Mr. and Mrs. Strozzi were talking together, but I could not hear what they said.

Heard Shot Fired.

"The second time I looked out the window I saw only the two Strozzis and Mr. Wilson. Mr. Wilson was seven or eight feet behind the Strozzis. As I looked out I saw Mr. Strozzi give his wife a push. He had a revolver in his hand and fired a shot. Wilson fell.

"Mrs. Strozzi went over to Wilson and after bending over him said 'He's dead.' Then she said to her husband 'Come on,' and they ran away.

"Just before the shot was fired I heard Strozzi say to Wilson 'Keep back.' Wilson was not more than four feet from Strozzi when the shot was fired.

Another witness is Walter Cowan of Chambers street, Boston, who was walking to Somerville with David Rosenberg and Miss Jones.

"As we neared Linwood street on Somerville avenue we saw five people standing on the sidewalk. There were four men and one woman. They were having an argument. We passed by them and when we got ten feet beyond I turned to listen.

"I heard the woman say several times 'Shoot him; why don't you shoot him.' Wilson was not more than three feet away from the Strozzis at the time."

POPE WEAKER, DOCTORS ORDER COMPLETE REST

ROME, Dec. 1.—After a restless night, Pope Pius X, who is suffering from a light attack of bronchitis, was to-day advised by Drs. Marchiafava and Petacci to remain in bed a few days longer and not to attempt any business before the end of the week.

The Pope is somewhat weaker to-day.

The doctors insist that all His Holiness needs a few days' complete rest. It is difficult to enforce this edict, however, as the moment the Pope feels his strength returning he begins granting audiences to those who almost constantly besiege the Vatican.

EXPRESS AGENT DEAD IN CELLAR

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, Dec. 1.—Thomas C. Sherman, who had been the agent of the New York & Boston Dispatch Express Company here for sixteen years, was found dead in the cellar of his home at No. 371 Robeson street, early to-day, under such circumstances as to lead the police at first to believe that he had killed himself.

An investigation of the case by Medical Examiner Gunning revealed that the man died from suffocation, apparently having fallen ill suddenly. Mr. Sherman was last seen by his family yesterday morning.

List of Contestants Being Revised Under the New Schedule.

With 3,000 extra votes GIVEN with every subscription of thirty weeks to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, candidates in the European Tour contest for Sunday school teachers of Boston and Boston suburbs will henceforth do much of their voting by SPECIAL BALLOT.

The revised SPECIAL BALLOT schedule is eminently satisfactory to all the candidates. Dozens have expressed themselves as being better pleased with it than with the old schedule, under which 1,000 extra votes were given with every thirty weeks' subscription.

Also there is especial satisfaction over the fact that the proportionate number of EXTRA VOTES will be allowed to ALL THOSE WHO HAVE HERETOFORE VOTED BY SPECIAL BALLOT.

The revised standing of the candidates will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

Every candidate will want it. Likewise the friends of every candidate will want to see it. There will be a BIG DEMAND for BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICANS in all the nine voting districts, and orders, therefore, should be placed early with newsdealers, or subscriptions should be forwarded early to the European Tour department.

Has the name of YOUR favorite teacher been entered in the contest yet?

Did you see it there Sunday? If not, telephone and ask the European Tour Editor about it. Or—better still—enter her name AT ONCE. Send in a subscription to the SUNDAY AMERICAN for thirty weeks and START HER IN THE RACE WITH THREE THOUSAND VOTES.

DO IT TO-DAY!

LOCAL STOCKS OPEN WEAK

Following the London prices for American securities the local market opened weak. Amalgamated, Boston Elevated and Mass. Gas were off ½ and Butte Coalition off ⅜. Isle Royale, Lake Copper and Miami were up ⅛, but the sales were less than 100 shares. Parrot went to 30⅜ from 30½ at the opening and showed the most strength. U. S. S. reflected yesterday's weakness and went to 54¼ during the first fifteen minutes' trading.

TO CONTESTANTS

The European Tour contest Special Ballot schedule has been revised. Hereafter 3,000 extra ballots will be GIVEN with every subscription of thirty weeks to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, instead of 1,000, as heretofore.

In fairness to all candidates who have heretofore voted by Special Ballot, the BOSTON AMERICAN will allow the proportionate number of EXTRA VOTES under the revised schedule to ALL OF THEM, and the revised standing will be published in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

Hereafter the voting will close every week at 1:30 p. m., on Friday, instead of on Saturday.

SOCIETY GIRLS AID SOUTH END NURSERY FAIR

The annual fair for the benefit of the South End Day Nursery is being held today and to-morrow in the reception halls of the Hotel Vendome. One of the large parlors is devoted to the serving of luncheon from 12 to 2 o'clock and tea from 4 to 5:30 and then chafing dish suppers from 6 to 8.

An army of pretty society girls is in attendance to-day on the various booths and tables, those in the cafe being dressed in white with great red ribbon bows tied in charming fashion in their hair. The decorations of the snowy white tables are also red, enhancing the effect.

This afternoon a musicale was held in one of the parlors and a Punch and Judy Show for the children in another. The artists at the musicale were Mrs. Frances Dunton Wood, soprano; Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child, contralto; Miss Mabel Metcalf Holmes, pianist; Miss Edith Sampson Holden, violinist, and Miss Stearns, accompanist.

Not long since the South End Day Nursery Auxiliary held a bridge whist party at the Hotel Somerset, which netted the entire cost of the present two-day fair, so every cent of money realized on this occasion will be clear profit. Last year the auxiliary cleared $2,000 in two days for the South End Day Nursery at its fair.

To-night the Harvard Glee and Mandolin Club will take part in the Cafe Chantant. Several of the best of the vaudeville artists performing in Boston this week will add to the evening's enjoyment.

Among the patronesses, of whom there are about fifty, are: Mrs. Oliver Ames, Sr., Mrs. H. L. Higginson, Mrs. Oscar Iasigi, Mrs. Daniel T. Kimball, Mrs. C. P. Hemingway, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. Amory Eliot and Mrs. Robert D. Evans.

MANILA "SORE" AT SPERRY; TO LODGE PLAINT

MANILA, Dec. 1.—Governor-General Smith will, it was reported to-day, lodge an official complaint with the Government at Washington against the attitude of Admiral Sperry, commanding the American fleet during its stay in Manila harbor.

The fleet weighed anchor at 8 o'clock this morning, and in a drizzling rain began the homeward voyage. No Americans witnessed the departure and no official farewell messages were tendered the fleet officers.

The slight from the American residents was construed as a rebuke to Admiral Sperry for his alleged indifference to the plans of entertainment that the Americans had arranged for the fleet. Had it not been for Governor-General Smith's urgent insistence to the authorities at Washington, Admiral Sperry would not have allowed even the four days of shore leave that were finally granted, grudgingly, the Americans declare.

The excuse given by Admiral Sperry, that he did not wish to subject the men to the danger of cholera, finds few defenders.

The first stop of the fleet will be Colombo, December 24. The ships will arrive at Suez, 6,386 miles away, on January 5.

DISCOVER ILLICIT STILL IN BROCKTON

The Brockton police are to-day looking for the proprietor or conductors of an illicit still they, in conjunction with United States revenue officers, discovered in that city in the tenement of Felix Gilivski at No. 102 Bellevue avenue. The still, according to the revenue officers, is capable of producing about five gallons daily.

OWENS NEW AGENT FOR COCHECO MILLS

DOVER, N. H., Dec. 1.—At the meeting of the directors of the Cocheco Manufacturing Company H. W. Owens of this city, who has been superintendent of the mills for the past three years, was appointed agent in place of Charles H. Fish, who resigned. Fish has accepted a position as manager of the B. B. Knight Corporation of Providence, R. I.

TWO FINED FOR HAVING DOGS UNMUZZLED

Authorities in Earnest In Fight Against Hydrophobia Scare.

The war against unmuzzled dogs is on in earnest in Boston. The determination upon the part of the authorities to force compliance with the law in this connection was shown to-day in the South Boston Police Court, when two men were fined for allowing their dogs at large unmuzzled. Frank Callahan of No. 206 Broadway and Coleman Martin of No. 219 Third street were each fined $5 for not observing the law.

Dr. Samuel Durgin, president of the Board of Health, to-day took strong exception to the statement credited to George T. Angell, president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, that there is no such disease as hydrophobia.

"The test leaves no possibility of doubt," said Dr. Durgin. "I have the greatest respect for Dr. Angell and his work and regret that he has been misled on such an important, vital subject. We are taking every precaution to prevent the spread of this terrible malady."

"Are you enforcing the muzzling law?"

"That is not our province. I wish it were," he said. "But it is up to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen to enforce it. Surely it ought to be after the dreadful experiences of the past few weeks."

Discovery by Dr. Frothingham of the State Board of Health that the small black and white mongrel dog which last week bit five children and one man and many dogs while it ran for five hours through the streets of Waltham was afflicted with hydrophobia has increased three-fold the apprehension which already existed in that city.

To-day the most radical measures are being taken to stamp out the disease and any dog that is even suspected of having been bitten is being shot. Every strangely-acting dog is to be killed by the policemen on sight.

URGE ELIOT AS SUCCESSOR TO REID IN LONDON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Post urges Mr. Taft to appoint President Eliot of Harvard ambassador to England in succession to Mr. Reid.

The Post says: "The qualifications of President Eliot need not be recounted. He is in full possession of his keen and ripened powers and unimpaired bodily vigor. His vast experience in executive and public affairs, his sound judgment, his catholic spirit and his rare culture fit him for the duties of ambassador to Great Britain to a degree approached by very few Americans."

MAY PEPPER ON WAY TO JOIN RICH HUSBAND

"Little Bright Eyes," Famous Medium, Wins Suit as Wife of Vanderbilt.

Mrs. May Pepper-Vanderbilt, who as "Little Bright Eyes" won the heart of the aged millionaire lumber king, Edward Ward Vanderbilt, is on her way to Brooklyn from Boston to-day to rejoin her husband, whom the sheriff's jury in Brooklyn yesterday refused to say was mentally incompetent.

"Mrs. Vanderbilt, while, of course, greatly pleased with the verdict of the jury that gives her her husband and her rights, is very much broken in health," said Mrs. Harry Chase of No. 202 Lewis street, Lynn, with whom Mrs. Vanderbilt has been staying in her West Lynn residence.

"She has gone to Brooklyn to rejoin her husband, now that he has been declared to be sane, and nothing can separate them. But she is much broken in health because of the long strain and excitement the trial has been to her nervous system."

That the aged lumber millionaire had a right to be a spiritualist, to marry Mrs. May Pepper and to give her his money even if the spirits did tell him to do so, the sheriff's jury decided did not prove Vanderbilt to be incompetent to manage his own affairs.

Mr. Vanderbilt married the spiritualist medium on June 1, 1907. He had been a lonely old man until this time, for his daughter and his family had no faith in his belief as a spiritualist. He was forced to live his religious life alone, and until he met Mrs. Pepper there were few to give him comfort and personal sympathy in his views.

Little wonder then is it when he heard from the spirits that "Little Bright Eyes" was his first wife's closest friend in the spirit world, and that he would make her very happy by marrying her here that he did so.

Then Miss Minerva Vanderbilt, the daughter, brought suit to have a guardian appointed for her father and a commission in lunacy named to examine him as to his sanity.

In the hearing which dargged along for months, Mr. Vanderbilt acknowledged that he was a spiritualist and that his second wife was a medium whom he had been advised by the spirits to make his wife. He claimed that he had a right to have any religion he wanted and that because he was a spiritualist and married and did what his creed taught him he was not on that account insane.

"If Vanderbilt goes on the stand now and says that he believes May Pepper to be a fraud, I will withdraw the suit of my client at once," declared Mr. Rosenberg, Miss Minerva Vanderbilt's attorney, during the hearing. "I give my word of honor that if I thought Vanderbilt's belief in spirit communication was a religious belief I would withdraw the case."

FIGHT BEGUN ON HARRIMAN'S RAILWAY TRUST

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The government suit to dissolve the Union Pacific Railroad system, controlled by E. H. Harriman, reached the evidence-taking stage to-day. The government began taking testimony in the litigation, in which it is alleged that the big railroad merger was brought about in restraint of trade and contrary to the Sherman anti-trust law.

The bill filed demands that the Court set aside the ownership by the Union Pacific Railroad of its subsidiaries, the Southern Pacific and the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake road and the ownership by either the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line of stock in the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads. These railroads are deemed to be competitors of the Union Pacific and are known as Harriman lines.

Several of the attorneys who are engaged in the Standard Oil hearing are also to take part in this litigation. They are Frank Kellogg, who, with C. A. Severance of St. Paul, will represent the government, and John G. Milburn of Buffalo, who is associate counsel for the defence.

"I'm Ready to Die for My Brother" ---T. Jenkins Hains

"RATHER BE HANGED THAN COWARD ENOUGH TO TURN MY BACK ON HIM."

By DOROTHY DIX.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—"If I were placed again in the same position in which I was that day at the Bayside Yacht Club, when Peter killed Annis, I should act again precisely as I did then. If I am to lose my life for defending my brother I shall go without regret, for I would rather be hanged a hundred times than to be coward enough to turn my back on my brother when he was in danger."

In these words Thornton Jenkins Hains recited to me the litany of his family loyalty as he sat in his cell in the Long Island jail.

In his hands he held the picture recently printed in the BOSTON AMERICAN of the four little Hains children, Peter Hains's three sturdy little lads and his own darling roly poly Molly—the tiny girl to whom he has been mother and father both since death robbed the child in its cradle of her beautiful mother—the flimsy little newspaper cut, worn and frayed, with much handling, trembled and shook as he asked me a thousand questions of the child that I had lately seen, while his hungry father eyes have not beheld her since the day of the tragedy.

In spite of his courage, however, the long weeks of prison life have told on the yachtsman and litterateur. His skin has lost the brown that sea and wind had painted on it, and is white with prison pallor. His hair is beginning to show flecks of white in the brown. Little lines, born of sleepless nights and anxious days, have formed around his eyes, and his voice has that curious, nervous vibrance that cuts one to the heart, it speaks so of suffering. There is nothing about the man, though, that indicates the bully and the brawler that one has heard so much about. On the contrary he is a singularly gentle man, gentle of speech and manner, and with almost a womanish sensitiveness in the big hazel eyes and around the clear cut nostrils. There is even a dimple in his chin.

"Frankly," he says, discussing the situation, "my chief sentiment is one of amazement at being in this place and being charged with murder, when there is not one single scintilla of evidence to connect me with the deed at all. The truth is that three times before Peter shot Annis I had prevented him from doing it, and saved Annis's life, and our meeting up with Annis that day, and the tragedy that ensued, was one of those inscrutable hapenings of luck or fate call it which you will—that no man's hands shape. I had no idea of seeing Annis when we went to Bayside. In fact, I had been told that he was elsewhere, and we went on personal business of mine.

As we drove up I saw Annis first and I whispered to Peter, 'There is Annis; let's go back.' But he broke from me like a madman, his face convulsed with rage, his eyes darting from their sockets, and before I could interfere he shot down the man who had ruined his home, disgraced his children and laid his life in ruins. When he saw Annis fall he threw down his pistol, which still had one cartridge in it unfired, and when the crowd around saw him standing defenseless, with hands that opened and shut convulsively, they started at the poor fellow.

"I knew from experience what a mob is, and as a big, burly Swede sailor drew back his fist to strike poor Connie, I drew my own gun and warned them back. Roberts had Connie's gun pointed at me, but I told him not to shoot, and all the time I kept crying out, 'Get an officer! Get an officer!'"

In Fool's Paradise.

"That was absolutely all the part I took in the killing of Annis. I never drew my gun until after the shooting was over, and when Connie was in danger.

"As for the absurd charge that I worked on Connie's jealousy until I stirred him up to the killing point, it is a pure fabrication. I wish to state here now for the first time that for five years I have known of Claudia's and Annis's infatuation for each other, and that things were not as they should be between them.

"Three years ago I told my father, the General, of what I knew, but neither one of us ever breathed one word of it to Connie. He was crazy about his wife. He believed in her implicity and we let him live on in his fool's paradise. It was not for us to shatter his happiness and bring disgrace upon our name if the matter could be helped. Not only I knew for years of the relationship between Annis and Claudia, but Claudia's mother knew about it, and more than once threatened to tell Peter on Claudia, as we will prove at the trial.

"It was Claudia's own letters, evidently written in half drunken frankness, that Connie received in a bunch when he reached San Francisco from his last trip on the transport to the Philippines, that first awakened him to the knowledge that something was wrong at home. She told on herself. He rushed home as fast as possible, and when he reached Fort Hamilton he asked her what was this gossip about herself and Annis, and she denied it being true, and he believed her.

"Then he summoned my father from Washington to help him refute the calumnies, and when the General reached there and Claudia found out that they were about to start for the place in the mountains she said she had been, she broke down and confessed all.

"That was at night. I knew nothing of Connie's return until the next morning, when I was at breakfast at Bayside, and a wild figure dashed in the door, waving its hands above its head and crying, 'I apologize, I apologize.' I thought a lunatic had come in, and then I recognized Connie. After a while I got him quiet enough to talk with coherence, and he told me what had happened, and I went home with him.

"When we got there we talked it over and some one said we must have a lawyer. None of us knew whom to consult, and so we asked Lieutenant Anaruss, and he advised Mr. Bennett, and we got him.

"I hope never to see another such scene as that," went on Mr. Hains, shading his eyes with his hands. "There sat Connie, crazed with grief, on one side of a table; on the other the old General, with the scanty tears of age rolling down his face, and the woman, snarling like a netted rat as she told things, things low and vulgar that she had done, even dragging us through the hideous details and speaking without one vestige of shame or remorse.

She Sought Brother's Roof.

"When it was all over she said to Connie that she didn't see what he made such a fuss about it for; that Mrs. So and So did the same thing and her husband didn't make any row about it.

"Think of that! Think of a woman saying that to a man who was a gentleman, like my brother!

"After it was all done and the telegrams had been sent asking her mother to come for her, she asked if she couldn't see me, and came out on the porch, where I was sitting.

"She said: 'Thornton, we have always been friends.' I told her that I still was, and unspeakably sorry for her or for any woman who had got herself in such trouble. She said: 'Won't you let me come and live in your house? I have nowhere else to go, for now my mother won't take me in, and I will be put out on the street.' I said: 'No, I cannot do that. I will give you money, if you need it, and so will the General and Connie, but I can't let you live in my house.'

"Then I said, 'As long as you have been Annis's companion for five years, and Mrs. Annis has acquiesced in it, why don't you and he go somewhere together?'

"She replied, 'We have talked of it, but he won't do it.'

"Claudia says now that I was always her enemy and tried to make trouble between her and her husband, but she had never thought of such a thing until somebody else suggested the idea to her. All of our family blame Claudia's mother more than her for the things she has said and done since she was sent back home. As for the balance, she was in love with Annis, and he simply ruined her, body and soul, and dragged her down to the gutter. I believe firmly that there was never any other but Annis.

"Claudia also makes the pleasant charge against me that I was in love with her, my brother's wife. It is monstrous, inconceivable. I did not approve of her conduct with Annis and I saw as little of her as possible, and among the letters that we will present in court is one, written at the very time at which she now charges I was trying to alienate her affections from my brother, in which she complains to him that I had not been to see her in months.

"Claudia Fired Fatal Shot."

"It was in reality Claudia who fired the shot that killed Annis. As soon as she had been sent back to her people my father and mother put Connie, who was grief crazed, in my charge, and told me not to let him out of my sight for fear he would do himself harm. I took him and kept him out on the water under God's sky all the time, hoping that fatigue of body would bring about surcease of suffering.

"My father was using every effort in the meanwhile to get the poor boy ordered off for service and we thought that time and absence on work would assuage his sorrow. Three times he was on the point of killing Annis during this period and I prevented it, once giving him an overdose of a sleeping powder. Everything was working well and we thought the danger line of the husband's righteous wrath had been passed, when Claudia brought her suit accusing Connie of the most horrible vices and things unmentionable.

"Her demand was for large alimony and the custody of the children, and the alternative was the filing of this suit, and she threatened, if he didn't accede, that she would make him 'wade through blood.' Those were the words of her lawyer.

"That was two days before Connie saw Annis at Bayside, and it was more than his poor overwrought brain could stand. All his wrongs, his broken heart, his desecrated hearthstone, his little children worse than motherless, the very love she had trampled upon and mocked cried for vengeance, and he killed the betrayer of his wife and despoiler of his home.

"And I stood by my brother and protected him after his mad act, and I would not be a man in my own eyes if I had done less. That is the whole, true story of the Bayside tragedy."

Asked of his plans when he is liberated, Mr. Hains replied:

"The report that I expect to go to sea again when I am acquitted is true. I do not see why it should interest or amaze any one. I have been put in a position where I have been forced to undergo an amount of disagreeable notoriety—I had no choice. Had I ran away and left my poor brother when he started to shoot the man who ruined his home and taught his wife infamy I would have been hailed as a coward, a man unfit to have either friend or brother.

"I I stayed and protected him—which, thank God, I did—I am hauled into jail and prosecuted as a murderer. My home is destroyed, my little girl, crying in her utter desolation, is disregarded, and every epithet known to the villainous imagination of the degraded woman and her attorney is heaped upon me. And for what?

"Is it remarkable, therefore, that I feel I have had enough of what is now called 'the age of reason'? Is it strange that I should long for a place where a man can still be a man without being something accursed? Yes, I expect to go back to sea again. PLANS FOR BIG HUB SPORTSMEN'S SHOW

Out from the heart of the vast, silent woods and from the shores of the great silver lakes of the north have daily come stories of extraordinary luck by the sportsmen with gun and rod. There seems to be unusual interest this year in all that pertains to true sport, which fact holds out brilliant promise for the success of the sportsmen's show soon to be established at Mechanics building on Huntington avenue. Richard E. Follett is the general manager and the second vice-president of the New England Forest, Fish and Game Association, and under his auspices this immense show is to be established and controlled.

MAN KILLED BY FALL FROM THE "L"

Losing his balance while at work on the structure of the new Elevated station at Dudley street terminal, John Foote, sixty years old, a carpenter, who lives on Cutter street, Somerville, was dashed a distance of forty feet to the ground and killed.

ROAD MUST PAY TO USE BRIDGE

The Union Freight Railroad will have to pay for the use of the Northern avenue bridge, if the plan recommended by President Bernard J. Rothwell, of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and Charles H. Jones, of the Merchants' Association, is adopted. Action on the matter is still held in abeyance by the Board of Aldermen.

The solution of the matter, by the two men selected by the Mayor to investigate the question, contemplates the granting to the railroad the privilege of using the bridge on tracks to be built by the company at the city's expense, the company to pay the city 5 per cent. a year upon the total additional cost entailed in equipping the bridge for railroad purposes, approximately $15,400, and in addition annually such proportion of the additional cost of construction as will wipe out the sum in thirty years.

The committee also urges the Mayor to try to get legislation that will provide that all franchises shall pay the city for their privileges.

NEWBERRY NEW HEAD OF NAVY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Truman H. Newberry of Michigan, who has been assistant secretary of the navy, was to-day sworn in as secretary of the navy, succeeding Victor H. Metcalf of California. Shortly after taking the oath Mr. Newberry attended his first cabinet meeting at the White House.

Spokes of the Hub

Frank Kernan, a five-year-old Dorchester boy, had a narrow escape from death while playing near his home at No. 67 Auckland street. The little fellow fell in front of an electric car, but was picked up by the fender and pushed along the ground for several feet. He is at the City Hospital.

John Bruce, of Portsmouth, N. H., who, it is alleged, has been swindling Chelsea residents, is under arrest, having been brought to the police by three of his alleged victims. Bruce, it is said, promised to obtain work for the men, but after taking their money departed.

The Board of Aldermen have granted the request of the Finance Commission for another month to complete their work. The commission was due to windup its affairs on December 31, but they found it impossible to do so by that date.

Frederick A. Dickinson, a manufacturer of shoe stock, in Woburn, fell down a flight of stairs at his home on Pearl street and was fatally injured.

Felix Vicinio is in court to-day charged with holding up and robbing a man in the North End. His capture was brought about only after a wild chase, in which one shot was fired by Patrolman Gordon.

An ambulance conveying a patient to the Massachusetts General Hospital collided with a team on Hanover street and instead of one three were brought to the hospital. Raymond Carey, who was riding on the team, and John G. Taylor, the driver, both of Chelsea, were injured in the crash.

Rather than have Salisbury Beach separated from their jurisdiction the Selectmen of Salisbury have decided to protect the beach in future years with adequate fire apparatus and have ordered four chemical machines from Boston.

William Stead, nineteen, of 58 Elm street, was stricken with heart failure while bathing in the swimming pool at the Y. M. C. A., and drowned before his companions could aid him.

WIFE CHARGES GOULD GAVE GIRLS GEMS

"Miss Blank" and "Miss Dash" Named as Figuring in Parisian Episode.

GAVE CASH PRESENTS ALSO

The divorce suit brought by Mrs. Helen K. Gould against Frank Jay Gould is to be tried in open court and not before a referee, as was done with the Alfred G. Vanderbilt case some months ago, it is announced in dispatches from New York to-day.

It became known that Mr. Gould rejected, as late as last week, overtures for secret hearing.

Instead of reading aloud in court the names of the women co-respondents, whose names were incorporated by Court order, Attorney Herbert C. Smyth referred to them as "Miss Blank" and "Miss Dash."

"Miss Blank" was declared in the complaint to have been favored by Mr. Gould with dinners at the Cafe Martin, with many valuable gifts of jewelry and with one present of $3,000 in cash.

Scene Shifts to Paris.

In the case of "Miss Dash" the scene shifts to Paris, at the Grand Hotel. There, the complaint alleges, an "agent or associate" of Mr. Gould engaged a room "adjacent or connecting with" the room occupied by Miss Blank, and that Mr. Gould had access to both rooms.

A house of the "Queen Anne style overlooking the waterfront" in North Sydney, Cape Breton, N. S., is the location given for the third act in the charges. The name of the woman, it is admitted, is unknown to Mrs. Gould, but her husband is charged with visiting this woman while his yacht was anchored just offshore. In an apparent effort to make the location of this house definite, the amended complaint used so many words that the Gould lawyers dubbed it a "real estate description" and moved that it be stricken out as "irrelevant," along with ten other paragraphs.

New Accusations Made.

The original amended bill contained ten paragraphs of accusations, have been increased to twenty-four. Attorney Fuller, representing the defendant, made oral objection to the clauses, and was given until Wednesday to file a memorandum.

A close friend of Frank J. Gould consented to make a statement, which is believed to clearly set forth the position of the young millionaire. This friend said:

"You know, Mr. Gould never talks for publication, but I have his consent to talk to you about this case. Now, what do you want to know?"

"An attorney for Mrs. Gould stated in court that he believed the defendant was trying to get all the publicity he could, which was just what Mrs. Gould did not want," he was told.

"Why, that is untrue," said Mr. Gould's friend. "Mr. Gould has objected all along to having his case flaunted before the public. But he insists that the charges made are untrue and malicious, and he has insisted that they be backed up by proofs in open court. He knows they cannot be proved. That is why he demanded specific names, dates and places of the alleged offences."

"But the attorneys now say they have produced them," was remarked.

"That is untrue also. For instance, Mr. Gould has been informed that no such house as the one described exists at the location fixed for it in North Sydney."

"But this accusation concerning the Grand Hotel, in Paris, seems specific, does it not?"

Question of Gould Gifts.

"No, that does not connect Mr. Gould at all with the acts charged. Mr. Gould, while in Paris, stopped at a little obscure hotel. A gentleman friend of his who was at the Grand Hotel became ill. Mr. Gould visited him, and that friend is the one referred to as an 'agent or associate' of Mr. Gould, who procured what alleged to be the adjoining room to that occupied b the young woman. Mr. Gould did not even know that the young woman had a room in the hotel."

"Did Mr. Gould make gifts to the young woman referred to as 'Miss Blank' and entertain her in New York?" was asked.

"Why, suppose he gave her $5,000 or $10,000—not admitting it, just supposing—does that support the charges which have been given here as grounds for divorce? Is there anything to show that the acts charged were committed in the cafe?"

Justice Seabury reserved decision.

LANDLADIES' RIVAL BANDS IN DEFIANCE

Mrs. Angelica E. Post and John A. Cronin Each Claim Original Honors.

MEET AGAIN TO-NIGHT

The dispute between the two rival Landladies Real Estate Owners' Protective Association increases in bitterness.

John A. Cronin, the real estate dealer of No. 126 Massachusetts avenue, former president of the original association, and re-elected president at a meeting of his followers in Ideal Hall, No. 563 Tremont street, last Friday night, declares that his association is still the only original one. He says that he and his followers deposed Mrs. Angelica E. Post of No. 218 West Springfield street as president and that he and his officers were not deposed by Mrs. Post and her rival organization.

Mrs. Post, who had a meeting of her faction at her home, says that Cronin and his wing have been "dropped, cut off," as she expressed it.

Cronin holds that Mrs. Post was the deposed one. He intimates that he and his faction are willing to work in harmony with Mrs. Post and her camp, but to-day he resents the statement by Mrs. Post that he was deposed and that he is not a landlord or proprietor of a lodging house.

"We are the original association," says Cronin, "we hold our association just the same, despite Mrs. Post. She said I was neither landlord nor proprietor of a lodging house. I am both. I own three lodging houses in the South End, besides other pieces of real estate. Therefore I have as much to protect as she has, even a little more.

"Rgarding the call Mrs. Post issues for her meeting to-night, I hope the public and the lodging house proprietors will not be led into following her advice, as she has no legal standing whatever in the Landladies and Real Estate Owners' Protective Association.

"There will be a meeting of the original association in Ideal Hall, Friday night. The original officers, with myself as president, will be there."

UNDER FIRE, FRISCO POLICE CHIEF SUICIDE

Biggy Believed to Have Leaped to Death in the Bay from a Launch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—William J. Biggy, chief of police of this city, was drowned late last night while returning across the bay in the police launch Patrol. It is believed he committed suicide because of the charges against him. Chief Biggy had been at Belvidere, a suburb, to call on Police Commissioner Keil, who resides there. He boarded the launch to return to the city about 10 o'clock and complained of feeling cold to Engineer Murphy. Murphy advised Biggy to go to the cabin. He started to do so.

Murphy then went forward to attend to his engine, and as the boat neared the city noticed that the chief had disappeared. Numerous boats were hurried to the scene and a careful search of the bay was begun without finding the body.

Charges of incompetency and dereliction of duty had been filed against the chief since the suicide of Haas, who shot Heney, and in return he filed similar charges against Captain of Police Duke, who searched Haas in the courtroom, and against Detective Sergeant Thomas F. Burke, who was in charge of Haas at the jail.

'THE CHAPERON' WITH MAXINE ELLIOTT A HIT

New Play by Marion Fairfax Amusing, Vivacious and Cleverly Constructed.

ISLAND SCENE A WINNER

Miss Maxine Elliott's new play, "The Chaperon," is a comedy gem.

That second act at the Majestic Theatre last night was particularly entertaining.

Miss Elliott, as the Countess Van Tuyle, was desperate at finding herself in a compromising position at an Adirondack camp with her former admirer, Jim Ogden (Julian l'Estrange), an unexpected guest at the same camp. The fact that the Countess was chaperon made the situation all the more unfortunate.

In evening clothes she undertook to smuggle him away from the camp in a canoe. The canoe hit a rock. They beached the wrecked craft on Hog Island and spent the night on its bleak waste in the rain.

The second act is the dawn, which rises in a stage picture worthy of Belasco. The dicky birds chirp. As the audience waits breathless for what the rising sun shall disclose one tremendous snore gives an anti-climax of absurdity. The snore is the shameless Ogden, who sleeps, while a dishevilled feminine figure starts up in wild despair. This figure is Miss Elliott, her evening gown rain soaked and ruined. Tightly buttoned around her is the swallowtail and waistcoat portion of Ogden's "full dress suit of clothes," as they say.

The lady's plight is "sumpin' fierce" and her wrath and despair are hysterical. She calls pitifully to Ogden, who snores merrily on.

Ogden awakes. There is nothing to do but wait and reflect on the construction the undesirable Count Van Tuyle will put on the whole accidental situation. Meanwhile Miss Elliott sniffs disdainfully at Ogden's suggestion about the Countess hanging some clothes up to dry.

"You might—er—er," he stammers, "take off some—er—underneath things, y'know—and hang 'em up and, when those are dry, why—er—er—hang up some of the—er—er—outside things, y'know."

Wasn't that just like a man?

Of course the Count is the first to arrive. Unfortunately he discovers the resourceful Ogden kissing the Countess. The Count becomes real nasty and gets a black eye after a hully mix-up with Ogden.

A dull-witted native arrives, and while Ogden is trying to bargain with him Miss Elliott impounds his canoe and leaves the native, the Count and Ogden to figure it out alone. In the third act the Count effaces himself for a cash consideration, and all ends happily.

The comedy is bright, but not overstrained for mere smartness. Miss Elliott is delightfully natural. She is spared any excessive emotional strain. Mr. l'Estrange is adequately strong as Ogden. Miss Ora Waldrop wins admiration as the pert youngest sister in a family of girls. Grant Mitchell as the native makes a bigger hit in his half-minute of speaking part than many actors would achieve in a whole act.

The author, Miss Marion Fairfax, has written a mighty amusing play and one particularly fitted to Miss Elliott.

"The Third Degree"

A large audience at the Hollis Street Theatre last night put the stamp of unmistakable approval on Charles Klein's new play, "The Third Degree." The name of the play is a police phrase made famous by former Inspector Byrnes of New York, and describes the method of making prisoners confess after their arrest. In this play, however, hypnotism is used on a prisoner, and under the spell he confesses to a murder which he did not commit. A special review of Mr. Klein's new play, written by Miss Mary McLane, the noted authoress, formerly of Butte, Mont., and illustrated by L. W. Burgess of the BOSTON AMERICAN staff, will appear in this newspaper tomorrow.

Henry Miller Returns

Henry Miller came back to Boston yesterday with his popular play, "The Great Divide," and at night repeated his last season success at the Colonial Theatre. Despite the rain there was a large audience. This play had a run of 500 nights in New York, and has about all the elements which appeal to the average playgoer. As Stephen Grent, Mr. Miller had the character so well in hand that his performance may be said to be now more than finished—it is polished.

Very fine art indeed he showed in byplay and pose. Scarcely once did he raise his voice above normal pitch, and he graded the change in the character of the hero of this drama of the great Southwest with skill quite subtle. The motif of "The Great Divide" is quite akin to the moral, if there be any, of the attack by the earliest Romans upon the Sabine maidens. The play elucidates a sex problem in a way—the mastery of primitive man over even a refined woman. As Ruth Jordan, Miss Thais Lawton was very pleasing, and the whole cast is good.

"House of Thousand Candles"

"The House of a Thousand Candles," the offering by the John Craig Stock Company at the Castle Square Theatre this week, holds out all sorts of enchantment for the lover of the mystery drama. The play is in four acts, by George Middleton, adapted from the novel of the same name by Meredith Nicholson. The book is replete with mystery that would put the ordinary detective story to shame. The play follows the book in this respect, without even nearly approaching the melodramatic danger point.

The John Craig stock company present the play for the first time in this city. That the story has many friends was evident by two crowded houses yesterday. John Craig, as Bates, that admirable old servant whose faculty for keeping a secret gets him into all kinds of trouble before explanations are made, has a role not unlike that of William Gillette in "The Admirable Crichton." He did excellent work. William Evarts, as the aged millionaire who instigates the report of his own death to learn who are his real friends; George Hassell, as the grandson who is the heir "under conditions"; Donald Meek, as the friend, "tried, true and Irish"; Theodore Friebus, as the "villain who would spoil it all," and Mary Young, as two kinds of a girl—both of them heroines—make up an excellent cast.

At the Boston Theatre

In "A Message from Mars" that the Boston Theatre Stock Company is presenting at the Boston Theatre this week, Wilson Melrose and Frank Losee have the brunt of the work. Melrose is seen in a new light in this piece, appearing as Horace Parker, the selfish and cruel millionaire, who is finally made into a respectable human being by Frank Losee, the messenger from Mars. Both did their parts excellently last night. Rose Morison played the aunt and Eleanor Gordon the sweetheart of the selfish man, and they also did well.

In this piece Losee, as the messenger, has a chance to use his powerful voice to good advantage, and he does it. One of the best pieces of acting was that of Walter Walker as the tramp.

Amazing Stunts with a Whip

Fred Lindsay, the far-famed Australian whip artist, furnished an unusually interesting, though brief, performance at Keith's this week, and part of his exhibition sent cold chills down the backs of the large audience which last night greeted a program interesting from start to finish. Lindsay does just about everything with a whip—far more things than most persons would think possible. He flicks the ashes from a cigar an attendant is smoking; cuts a candle in two; flings a revolver out of a man's hand and then trips the man as he walks away. The thriller is when he swishes the cruel lash through the air and ties a knot with it around a young woman's neck.

Rock and Fulton, vaudeville favorites, are here again. Miss Fulton's dancing is as bewitching as ever. Sam Curtis, ponderous as ever, gave a singing sketch, "A Lesson at School," with himself, the schoolmaster and three pretty girls who can sing and act their parts in the funniest manner. Jean Marcel's living art studies were well posed. The Cutty Family gave a brilliant performance while the dancing of White and Bryan was a surprise.

Orpheum's Bill Diverse

This week's bill of attractions at the Orpheum is rarely diverse and interesting. Senor Fah de Bruno, the Italian consul, and his family occupied a box in honor of Mlle. Fatima Miris and her sister, Mlle. Emilia Frassenei. Their father conducted the orchestra during the performance of their parts. Mlle. Miris, in her protean act, made the cleverest of imitations. Her quick change of costumes is remarkable, her laughing song made a hit, and the whistle song, sung recently by Daisy Lloyd, made just as much fun as ever. Mlle. Frassenei played on her violin as cleverly as she did when she was here before.

Alice Raymond and her clever players and Egyptian costumes and characters were popular. Grace Hazzard was as successful as last week. George W. Day, the "burnt cork artist," and all the others were as good as the best.

"Never Too Late to Mend"

"It's Never Too Late to Mend," the play with a moral is the attraction at the Grand Opera House this week. The offering is a powerful melodrama, and thrilling scenes follow fast.

As Dick Fairfax, the hero, Walter Downing was capital. Madeline Delmar in the character of Audrey Hope made as sweet a boy as she was a girl. Katherine Vincent had a most difficult part, but she did it well. May Mortimer, Augusta Perry, William F. Canfield, Add Sharpley and Bert V. Wallack did capital work in their roles. Franklin Hall was good as Dexter Harcourt, and every time that Tommy Toner and Paul Burns appeared on the stage it was the occasion for the audience to laugh.

Frank Daniels' Second Week

Frank Daniels and company in "Hook of Holland" began last evening the second week of the run at the Park Theatre of one of the most pleasing entertainments of its class ever seen in this city so far this season. Mr. Daniels impersonates a good-natured widower, whose affections are wholly distributed between his daughter and his distillery, in his usually quaint style. He has added to his triumphs by his work in this role. The house was crowded last evening, and the audience had its fill of laughter and music.

Tremont Theatre

"The Merry Widow" made the audience which crowded the Tremont Theatre last evening quite as merry as she is, and another week of a phenomenal run was begun as successfully as any of its predecessors. The run will continue four weeks longer. Both operetta and company will leave town burdened with encomiums. Donald Brian and Lina Abarbanell, Oscar Figman, Anna Bussert and others in a cast of remarkably even merit have all made great individual successes. It is certain that the audiences during the remaining month of the run at the Tremont will tax the capacity of the house.

Bowdoin Square Theatre

"Raffles" was the play given at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday, and the house was thronged as usual. The play is a very famous and interesting one and is finely played by the popular stock company. Hal Clarendon appeared as Raffles, the amateur burglar, and gave the role a most artistic portrayal, while the interpretation of the character of Gwendolyn by Charlotte Hunt is one of the best efforts of this charming actress. The whole cast was good. The moving pictures continue an enjoyable feature. For this week the curtain will rise at 1:45 and 7:45.

At the Old Howard

Jack McAuliffe, former lightweight champion of the world, headed the list of attractions at the Howard yesterday, and he and his partner, Jim Flynn, illustrated some old-time features of the manly art in a way which pleases patrons immensely. The Broadway Gaiety Girls, with Dorothy Collins and Maida Dupree in the front row and Mike Kelly as leading comedian, made the rafters ring with laughter. The house bill is a corker, and the whole show ranks with the best entertainments of the year.

New Gaiety Theatre

The Hastings Show was the bill at the new Gaiety Theatre yesterday and the entertainment was above the average, if not above the order, of what is usually termed burlesque. The house was packed, and the efforts of the talented company pleased greatly. The piece called "Frolicsome Frolics" is in three scenes and replete with wit and humorous situations. "A Summer's Night" concludes the bill. The company includes such favorites as Harry Hastings, Tom Coyne and Viola Sheldon. There are thirty-five shapely girls in the troupe.

Palace Theatre

Charles Robinson and his Night Owls made the Palace Theatre resound with laughter and applause yesterday when they gave a show that only the cleverest fun-makers and vaudeville artists can provide. The burlesques were seen in "The Trimming Shop" and "The Mardi Gras Mashers" which are full of comedy situations, taking songs and lively dances. Among the entertainers were Charles Robinson in his impersonation, and such attractive girls as Jeannette Young, Edith Melrose and Flo Kimball.

Columbia Theatre

"The Follies of the Day" company are at the Columbia Theatre this week and are giving a show which stands out strong for merit. The company gives an original entertainment, and it is a clever satire on things dramatic and political. The company is a bang-up one. On the roster are such winners as Sam Sidman, Larry McCale, John West, John Williams, Ed Harrison, Gertrude Hayes, Ida Sturgis, Blanche Corcoran, Margaret Round and Sallie Brown. The show and chorus girls are all comely and sprightly. Last night was "municipal" night, the Mayor and Aldemen having been invited, as well as the Newsboys' Union.

Austin & Stone's

Zubeda Agra, the barefoot Turkish dancer, presented some new dances at Austin & Stone's Museum yesterday and astonished the audience by her grace and dash, as well as by the novelty of her terpsichorean efforts. There are a bevy of Oriental dancing maids with her. The show in the theatre was strong all through, and the other attractions well worth seeing.

Star Theatre

The pictures shown yesterday at the Star Theatre were of a high order. Alfred Daudet's dramatization of L'Arlesienne is one of the best pictures of Pathe acting yet seen. "The King's Pardon" is very good, while the comedy, "Magic Handkerchief," inspired hearty laughter. The illustrated songs were catchy and well sung.

Story of Imperial Love

Depicting scenes and incidents in the life of the great Napoleon from the time of his divorce from the Empress Josephine until his banishment for life to the rock of St. Helena and furnishing an insight into the life and fortunes of the famous French emperor, "The Imperial Divorce" was produced for the first time in Boston at the Globe Theatre before two crowded houses yesterday afternoon and evening.

William Humphrey, supported by a strong company of most capable actors, gave stirring presentations of probably the least known incidents of the Emperor's life. The devotion and steadfastness of Josephine and her renunciation of all for Napoleon was most excellently portrayed by Miss Keith Wakeman. Miss Pauline Potter as Marie Louise and Miss Marion Kerby as the faithful cousin of Josephine gave most worthy presentations. The settings and costuming were elaborate and the production promises to bring record crowds to the Globe Theatre this week.

Scenic Temple

Patrons at the Scenic Temple, corner Berkeley street and Warren avenue, were given an opportunity yesterday to inspect the annex, which was formerly the vestry of the Berkeley Temple, and which will be utilized hereafter for the overflow audience. The show at the Scenic Temple this week is one of the best ever presented there. The motion pictures are new, amusing and instructive; the illustrated songs are fetching and are well rendered. The olio included a monologue, instrumentalists, and vocalists and a couple of bright comedy sketches. On Thursday there will be a change of motion pictures and on Saturday the performance will be continuous, beginning at 2:30.

Hub Theatre

An excellent vaudeville bill, illustrated ballads sung by capable artists, new variety of Miles Brothers' comedy and dramatic pictures is the bill at the Hub Theatre. The new vaudeville artists appearing this week are Adams and Mack, presenting the fantastical farce entitled "Mysteriarch and Mysteragogue, and Shadrock and Talbot, novelty singing and dancing sketch, and Kathelia, Cotter.

Winter Garden

At the Winter Garden in Park Square this week two high cost attractions are offered, one the sensational aerial act of DePhil and West, who perform on a combination of a monocycle and a trapeze suspended from a high wire. It will be given three times daily. Another attraction presented twice every day beginning Wednesday will be the slide for life by Professor Joseph Stanley, who, hanging by his teeth, is shot down from the roof of the building, a distance of 300 feet, in three seconds. Stanley afterward will give an exhibition of strength of his jaw by lifting up a cask upon which his wife is seated, solely by his teeth. The total weight of cask and woman is 500 pounds. Madam Stanley, who is known as "the lady crushed alive," will permit a heavily loaded automobile to run over her and also permit a cask weighing 1,000 pounds to fall from a ladder upon her.

The moving picture theatre, where the films are changed twice every day and illustrated songs are sung by Billie Troy and other popular vocalists is one of the most popular places in the Garden. Willard's Temple of Music, Roury's camels, little Chinatown, the Temple of Oriental Mystery and many other attractions are among the most popular attractions at the Garden.

The prize competition between blondes will be continued for this week.

Ryan in Repertoire

Daniel Ryan comes to the Globe next week, beginning Monday matinee in the following repertory of standard and classic plays. On Monday matinee and night and Wednesday evening, "John, the Baptist," Tuesday and Saturday evenings Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde; on Wednesday matinee and Thursday evening, "The Devil"; Friday night and Saturday matinee, "The Bells."

MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM

A Cure at Lynn Which Proves Every Claim Made for the New Tonic Treatment.

Nothing better demonstrates that rheumatism is a disease of the blood than the fact that it is hereditary in certain families. It may not develop until conditions of cold and dampness favor it because nature is always fighting to keep the body in health. When disease does get the upper hand and rheumatism is seated in the blood, a remedy that will revitalize and renew the blood is the simplest and best means of relief.

There is no better proof of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of rheumatism than the cure of Mrs. A. J. Hill, of 47 Prospect street, Lynn, Mass.

"My sickness really began," she says, "in 1905, when I had a slight attack of rheumatic fever. In April, 1907, I had a second attack which became very serious and I was confined to bed for a week at a time. At the start I had severe shooting pains and, as the trouble grew worse, my right side became numb. I could not walk and had to be fed and dressed for nearly six weeks. I could not lift my right hand. My heart was affected and I would have dizzy spells. I was reduced in weight, had no appetite and was nervous and irritable. I was practically helpless for a time.

"Both doctors that treated me said I had muscular rheumatism, but I could not see as they benefited me much. I had to stop taking their medicine as I grew sicker every day and was losing all of my strength. My friends and neighbors can vouch for my bad condition and my chances of recovery seemed very small. I then began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in a few weeks was able to get around and was in good health."

The fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure rheumatism is so well established that it is difficult to understand how any sufferer can afford to neglect the remedy. These pills are absolutely safe and harmless. They make new blood, strengthen the nerves and cure rheumatism in the only way that it can be cured to stay cured.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

SUICIDE TRIED TO KILL GIRL

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Word was received here to-day that Mrs. N. P. Errington, wife of Nicholas Errington, a travelling salesman, living at No. 242 Schiller street, this city, is dead and her daughter, Theresa—their only child—is dying as the result of an attempt of the woman to end both their lives with carbolic acid in the Peabody Hotel in Memphis, Tenn.

Errington says his wife was enroute with her daughter to Hot Springs, Ark., via Memphis for treatment to a course of baths prescribed by her physician.

The dead woman was well supplied with funds, having $500 in currency, and about $500 worth of diamonds, together with an insurance policy for $2,000, taken out by Errington in favor of Theresa, his daughter. The woman was thirty-eight years old.

LIBRARY OPEN UNTIL 10 P. M.

The Public Library trustees meet to-day to authorize Librarian Horace G. Wadlin to keep the central library building open evenings until 10 o'clock instead of closing at 9 o'clock, as has been the case for the past month.

RICE'S BAIL WITHDRAWN.

Edwin L. Rice, who was arrested by the United States authorities on the charge of using the mail unlawfully and has been held for the Grand Jury, is to-day back in jail, his bondsmen having surrendered him. He is accused of attempting to extort money from Mrs. M. M. Johnson, a society woman of Cambridge.

TOWN STIRRED BY DISMISSAL OF TEACHER

Miss Suhlke Given No Reason by Medway School Board, Threatens Suit.

HAS MANY SUPPORTERS

Special to the Boston American.

MEDWAY, Dec. 1.—Miss Anna Suhlke, the pretty school teacher of twenty-three, who was dismissed without reason being given her by the School Board, to-day tendered her resignation in person to Secretary Charles M. Smith of the School Board and then left town for Milford, where she is consulting her attorney, John C. Lynch, as to a suit for defamation of character, which she says she is about to bring against one of the School Board.

About a week ago Miss Suhlke was notified that her services would be no longer required. No reason was given her and she refused to resign. She applied for a hearing Friday night and appeared before the board, but says they gave her no reason for their action, but insisted that she resign.

Another Teacher in Her Place.

This morning she did not appear in her school, Miss Perry conducting her classes.

This is Miss Suhlke's second trouble with the School Board. Last Fall some of the members of the board opposed her re-election, but they were defeated and she was teaching her second year here when the present difficulty arose. She is to return here to-night and expects to go to her home in Leominster to-morrow.

The School Board consists of Clark P. Harding, chairman; Thomas F. Maley, Charles M. Smith, Alvin W. Coombs, Dr. Samuel Butler and Fred Clark.

Mr. Harding, one of Miss Suhlke's friends on the Board, said to-day:

"I do not believe any of the charges against Miss Suhlke. It is too bad that a girl of her social standing should be so criticised by any members of this Board. I do not know who has made these charges, nor have I heard of what they consist, for I was not present at the hearing Friday night."

Whole Town Is Stirred.

"Every woman in this town has the highest regard for Miss Suhlke. What if she did go to Boston to a theatre with a young man? Is there anything wrong about that? She has many friends there. I think this whole thing is the upshot of a determination on the part of some member or members of the Board to rid Miss Suhlke of her place here as a school teacher.

"I have always had the highest regard for her both as a woman and as an instructor, and I know that she is as capable of filling that position as well as any woman could be."

The whole town is taking sides in the dispute, and if Miss Suhlke brings suit, as she threatens, Medway will be stirred as never before.

BEAUTY HELD FOR SHOOTING

Mrs. Carmela Lorainno, the young Sicilian wife who last night shot with intent to kill her supposed former sweetheart, Pasquale William, in New Bedford, was arraigned to-day before Judge Milliken in the Third District Court. Her victim was unable to appear and the case was put over until to-morrow.

Judge Milliken gave the young woman sixty days in the House of Correction last Spring for her attempt to kill Michael Naredose last Spring with a stiletto.

She shot William last night because she had heard of stories he was alleged to have circulated charging her with a series of thefts and attacking her character.

The woman carried her 14-months-old baby when brought into court. She is a striking, dark-eyed Sicilian girl of great beauty.

RUSHING WORK ON OPERA HOUSE

All the men who could possibly be used to advantage were put to work to-day on the Boston Opera House in Huntington avenue to rush it to completion. The work had to slow down for a couple of days to make preparations for the ceremony of laying the cornerstone, which took place yesterday with formal exercises, at which more than 1,000 were present.

In the list were representatives of all of Boston's historic musical organizations, the city and State. Governor Guild and staff were present. The founder of the enterprise, Eben D. Jordan, placed the stone in position.

MAKE 22-INCH SHOE FOR ARKANSAS MAN

The largest pair of shoes ever made for actual wear has been turned out from the factory of Edwin Clapp & Co. at South Weymouth. The shoes are size 16, and measure twenty-two inches in length and seven inches in width. Other dimensions are: Ball, 12⅜ inches; waist, 12 inches, and instep, 13½ inches. The shoes are made for a man in Newport, Ark. They were made on a special pair of lasts.

Two Confident Contestants for Beauty Prizes

KEEPS WOMEN COOL WHEN FIRE STARTS

Through the coolness of the elevator man, Ralph Nelson, the women occupants of the apartment house Longfellow at the corner of St. Botolph and Blackwood streets in the Back Bay were prevented from becoming panic-stricken when a slight fire broke out in the building late yesterday afternoon. Assuring them that there was no danger, he quietly aided all to leave the building. The damage amounted to $200. The fire started on the top floor and quickly filled the corridors with smoke.

MORE BLONDE BEAUTIES IN BIG CONTEST

Here are more of the blonde beauties selected by the red Domino man at the Great Winter Garden as candidates for honors in the prize contest which lasts all through this week. Next week the brunettes will be considered when the selections will be much easier, for the brunettes preponderate at the rate of ten to one, according to the red Domino man.

Yesterday and to-day thousands of the Sunday American Outing Club, with free tickets for the Great Winter Garden, witnessed the mammoth moving picture show, and with half fare tickets took in five of the garden's leading attractions. In addition there are several open air exhibits, including Dephil and West in their unicycle and trapeze performance fifty feet in the air, the Punch and Judy show, the illusion and clowns.

Within a few days the Igorote village will be installed with all the native customs, attire and ceremonies of the aborigines of Northern Luzon. Professor Socho's deep sea diving will be another of the leading features.

The great winter garden is proving a very popular place, being well filled afternoon and evening, in spite of the warm weather of the last week. The management aims to make it more alluring as the weeks pass. The Temple of Music, Merry-Go-Round, Moving Pictures and other shows have had a good business, and minor attractions and booths are being added as the days pass.

SAN FRANCISCO POLICE CHIEF LOST OVERBOARD

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—William J. Biggy, chief of police, was lost overboard from the police boat patrol between Belvidere and San Francisco early this morning. The only other occupant of the police launch was William Murphy, the engineer. Murphy missed the chief when the boat was about half way across the bay back to the city. A search of the launch showed no traces of the chief, and Murphy put on full speed and made for the dock. He reported the loss at once on his arrival and was taken in custody.

Reports immediately gained circulation that the chief had committed suicide. Whether he took his own life by leaping into the bay or fell from the boat while walking around the gangway could not be established.

FINDS DEFECT IN BOILER, SAVES 150

By spotting a defect in the boiler of the leather factory of Charles E. Hammond, No. 10 Stewart street, Lynn, in the shape of a crack eighteen inches long, the engineer, C. W. Burnham, won for himself the deep regard of the 150 employes, who consider that he saved them from possible death.

THERE WILL BE NO MISERY FROM INDIGESTION OR UPSET STOMACH

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

SUFFRAGISTS TO WAGE HOT CITY CAMPAIGN

Society Women Will Whirl Through Streets in Autos Demanding Right to Vote.

IN SCHOOL BOARD FIGHT

Women suffragists, intelligent, insistent and with social and financial prestige behind them, have for the first time come to the front in Boston and have organized for an active part in the next city election on December 15. They will insist on all women who are registered voting for members of the School Board.

This they will do, however, only as an opening wedge to their future. They want equal suffrage with men. Already literature telling women why they should vote and how they may register has been spread throughout the city. On the day of the city election they will make a demonstration that will be calculated to cause the leaders of the old machines to blink their eyes with wonder.

Through the streets they will whirl in big automobiles with posters attached, demanding the right of ballot, not only on the school board, but on every other question. The posters are striking in themselves and the method is novel and unique. Some of the leading members of Boston's fashionable set are interested in the movement.

Here are the names of some of Boston's most active spirits engaged in equal suffrage work: Mrs. E. H. Clement, Mrs. Robert D. Evans, Mrs. David P. Kimball, Mrs. James T. Fields, Miss Emily G. Balch, Mrs. Robert G. Shaw, 2d, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, Miss Isabel Wesson and Mrs Fiske Warren.

"Ballot Our Protection."

The huge posters, printed on white and yellow paper, contain these slogans:

"The Ballot Is Our Protection."

WOMEN IN {Colorado, Idaho, Utah and Wyoming} VOTE

For the Laws and the Law-makers That Govern Them.

WOMEN IN {Australia, New Zealand and Finland} VOTE

Do Massachusets Women Care Less How They Are Governed?

Why Should They Not Vote?

In another poster, printed in large black letters on yellow paper, is this:

Women vote for President and for all other officers in all elections on the same terms as men in Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho. Why not in Massachusetts?

One of the circulars that has been sent to all the women in Boston practically contains these admonitions:

1. Be sure your name is on the voting list, and if it is not, register.
2. Vote early on December 15.
3. Get other women to register and vote.

Whirlwind Auto Compaign.

"We are going about in automobiles covered with our campaign posters next election day," said Mrs. Richard Y. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Boston Equal Suffrage League. "This will be rather an unusual thing for Boston, but the suffragists here are determined that the question on the posters shall be read by everyone on the streets.

"We can think of no simpler or more effective way than to get automobiles, placard them with the posters and go about the city all day long. Thousands of people will see the posters and will start to think about equal suffrage and give it the consideration it deserves.

"All the details of the thing haven't been decided yet. We will take the matter up at the annual business meeting next Wednesday and make full arrangements. It is not yet decided who will ride around in the machines, but of course it will be some of our most ardent suffragists.

"The outlook for woman's suffrage was never as bright as it is this Fall. In New York it is quite the idea for all up-to-date women, and especially society leaders, to work enthusiastically for the ballot.

Quiet Methods Here.

"Our methods have been quieter here than elsewhere. We had such success at the fairs, however, that we intend to make our work more public. We still distribute handbills, use posters and make personal appeals for sympathy to our cause and for signatures to the monster petition to be presented to President-elect Taft."

Why Rengo Reduces Fat

Anti-Fats and Starvation Diet Result in Wrecking of the System.

In cases of fat, the food is not properly assimilated—that is, part of the food is retained by the body which should not be retained, and part which should be retained is thrown out. This does not always mean dyspepsia or indigestion, for one may have a very healthy stomach and yet begin to grow fat, through no apparent cause.

It is evident to any one, then, that to try to starve away the fat is both ridiculous and dangerous.

The use of anti-fats, remedies that positively stop digestion sooner or later, results in a breakdown of some organ and consequent disease.

Certain tropical fruits have been known for some time to be remarkable regulators of the system.

This is what Rengo does. It contains a tropical fruit mixture which has this faculty of perfectly assimilating food taken into the body. That is the secret. It has resulted in making Rengo a marvel as a fat-reducer and a health builder, and a Godsend to all fat people.

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail prepaid, by the Rengo Co., 3212 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit; no free packages at drug stores.

Rengo is for sale in Boston by Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores, 7 in Boston; Houghton & Dutton Co.; Henry Siegel Co., Washington and Essex Sts.; Woodward Drug Co., 100 Tremont St.; W. B. Hunt Co., 707 Washington St., 655 Mass. Ave., Cambridge, and 3 Pleasant St., Malden.

Weak, Lazy Bowels

A free trial will convince you that Multo-Fruto is the most natural constipation cure known, because it contains tropical fruit juices, and everybody knows that there is nothing so quick and thorough in curing chronic constipation and weak, fagged nerves as a fruit treatment. You can eat and enjoy it like fruit or candy.

Full sized packages, 25 and 50c, at drug stores. If your druggist has not got it, send your remittance to the Rengo Co., Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and they will send it prepaid. You can get a trial package of Multo-Fruto free only by writing to the above address. No free packages at druggists.

How Boston Society Women Are Campaigning for Right to Vote

Two of the Posters Issued by the Suffragists.

WHY NOT IN MASSACHUSETTS?
"THE BALLOT IS OUR PROTECTION"
WOMEN in COLORADO IDAHO UTAH WYOMING VOTE
For the Laws and the Law-makers that Govern Them
WOMEN in AUSTRALIA NEW ZEALAND FINLAND VOTE
Do Massachusetts Women Care LESS how they are Governed?
WHY SHOULD THEY NOT VOTE?
WHY?

Mrs. George F. Lowell and Miss Clara Simonds of the Newton Equal Suffrage League are in attendance at the Worcester Fair to get signatures for the petition and to personally appeal to as many men and women as possible.

A large amount of civic and educational work has been planned for this Winter by the Boston League.

"By working actual reform, we are going to show that we can accomplish things, that we can better conditions," declared Mrs. Fitzgerald. "We feel that one way to gain the vote is to prove that we are interested in public things, that we have ideals, that we can and will accomplish what we set out to do.

"Some anti-suffragists claim that the effect of having women in public life will be bad. As for that, women have been in public life for years, but they have had only the chores to do. They should have an equal chance with men and some of the credit they deserve."

One of the strongest circulars of the equal suffragists is headed "Justice" and "Equality." It declares that "women are citizens and wish to do their civic duty," and then goes on to enumerate why women want to vote in the following language:

"Women Are Citizens."

"WORKING WOMEN need to vote to regulate conditions under which they work. Do workingmen think they could protect themselves without the right to vote?

"HOUSEKEEPERS need to vote to regulate the sanitary conditions under which they and their families must live. Do men think they could get what is needed for their ward or precinct unless they could vote for the men that will get it for them?

"MOTHERS need to vote to regulate the moral conditions under which their children must be brought up. Do men think they could fight against vicious conditions that threaten their children unless they could vote for the men that run the ward?

"TEACHERS need to vote to secure fair treatment and to influence the management of the public schools. Do men think they could secure better school conditions unless they could elect the men that nominate the school board and hinder or help its work?

"BUSINESS WOMEN need to vote to secure for themselves a fair show in their business. Do business MEN think they could protect themselves against adverse legislation without the right to vote?

"TAX-PAYING WOMEN need to vote to protect their property. Do not MEN know that "taxation without representation is tyranny?"

"WOMEN OF LEISURE need to vote because they need every opportunity to devote their leisure to the welfare of the State and the public. Do not MEN scorn those of their number that shirk their share of the public duty?

"ALL WOMEN need to vote, for they need to use their faculties for others—to feel social consciousness, and to be educated by contact with their fellow men and women and by responsibility to the public.

"ALL MEN need women's help to build up a better and juster government, and

"WOMEN need MEN to help them secure their right to fulfil their civic duties."

SEND WIRELESS THROUGH FLOOR

Wireless telegraphy through three solid floors, with their networks of wires, tubes and pipes, all connected with the ground, is an undertaking novel and out of the ordinary, yet there is such an exhibit at the Henry Siegel Co.'s building, corner Washington and Essex streets.

The demonstration is remarkable, for never before has a message been transmitted in this way. The great amount of metal connected with the ground makes the obstacles almost insurmountable.

The exhibit is most instructive and educational. The Massie system is used. Men who are scientifically inclined are very much interested, and for young boys there seems to be a wonderful fascination in it. More than one has sent a message from the basement, where one of the stations is located, to his chum on the third floor, where is placed the other station. Messages to Santa Claus, asking for a present that would be acceptable have also been sent. R. A. Morton, Harvard '11, is in charge of the receiving station.

Messages are sent from one station to another through the vibration of the waves through the three solid floors with their hundreds of pipes, tubes and wires and other accessories of metal, clearly and distinctly. When the message is sent it is at 110 voltage, but when the spark gap in the condenser is ruptured the voltage is as high as 50,000; yet there is no danger because of the high frequency of the oscillations. A person charged with 50,000 volts ordinarily would be killed, but there is absolutely no danger.

The exhibition began Saturday and will be on exhibition all through the holidays. Up to New Year's Day thousands of shoppers will be for the first time afforded a practical illustration of the wonders of the "Wireless," seen in a modern mercantile emporium.

LYNN MAN HANGS HIMSELF IN CELLAR

Much sympathy is expressed in Lynn over the tragic demise of Thomas W. Dobbins of Lynn, who committed suicide in a cell in the Revere police station last night. Dobbins was arrested for drunkenness. Some time after being placed in a cell he was found dead, hanging from the crossbar of the door of the cell by a rope that he had made out of strips from his shirt. Dobbins had served in the United States army in the Philippines and in the Boxer uprising in China. He was badly wounded in the arm while in the Philippines, and the member has caused him considerable trouble ever since. Besides a wife and two children, he is survived by a father and three sisters.

SILK MEN UNITE, MAKE PLEA FOR TARIFF CHANGE

Importers and Manufacturers in Conference Agree on New Rates.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The unusual spectacle of importers and manufacturers agreeing on a tariff rate was the promise made to the Ways and Means Committee to-day.

F. W. Cheney, of Manchester, Ct., president of the Silk Association of America, brought this announcement. He said the manufacturers and importers held a conference last night and another this morning. Both sides agreed that the silk duties should be made specific, instead of ad valorem, and their relations were harmonious on other questions.

They will endeavor to get together on a full set of tariff rates, and if they succeed will recommend these figures to the committee for adoption. Cheney said that some of the Dingley rates on silk were too high and others too low. He hoped for an adjustment of these inequalities. As one argument in favor of protection, he said there was not one rich silk manufacturer in the country.

B. A. Levett, of New York, representing a ribbon manufacturer, asked that the tariff on ribbons woven in fabric be increased.

Since the production of this product in America, he said, foreigners have cut the price in two, and that it would be difficult for American mills to operate unless they were given protection.

A request for the retention of the present rate of sixty per cent. on silk gloves was made by Julius Kaysey, of New York. He said that the silk glove industry built up in this country now has 7,000 employes and a capital of $6,000,000.

Charles Ernst, silk manufacturer, of Lansdowne, Pa., asked for an increase in the duty on braids and trimmings on artificial silk.

About People You Know

GOVERNOR MAGOON of Havana, Cuba, accompanied by Colonel H. E. Crowder, judge advocate at Havana, is on his way to Washington to confer with Secretary Wright regarding the best methods for the withdrawal of the troops from Cuba and other administrative matters.

MRS. ELEANOR MERRON COWPER, the actress and playwright, who shot herself last Friday, is dead in the Presbyterian Hospital, New York.

GOVERNOR-ELECT DRAPER announces that he will continue General Brigham as adjutant general of the militia and his own chief-of-staff.

ORVILLE WRIGHT, who has been confined to his home at Dayton, O., since his arrival from the hospital at Fort Meyer, has so far recovered that he announces to-day his intention to visit France at once.

PRESIDENT-ELECT TAFT and Senator Bourne of Oregon defeated R. L. Borden and G. H. Perley, members of the Canadian Parliament 8 up in an international golf match at Hot Springs.

MISS ETHEL ROOSEVELT makes her New York debut this evening at a dance to be given at Sherry's by the Junior Cotillion. Miss Martha Bacon, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of State, who is one of Miss Roosevelt's chums, will also attend the cotillion.

WILLIAM H. TAFT, President-elect, has accepted the invitation extended by the University of Pennsylvania to deliver the oration at the Washington's Birthday celebration on February 22.

PROSPERITY IS INDICATED BY BUSY MILLS

More Apparatus and Additional Help Installed in Big Centres.

The Walworth Manufacturing Company of South Boston has taken on thirty new hands during the last fortnight, and says it will put more on daily.

In Cambridge the Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Company reports an increase of 12 per cent. in business for the month. Edward D. Whitford, treasurer of the John P. Squire Packing Company, says the company's business has jumped 25 per cent. in thirty days. He figures this increase in food products means more men at work. Much of his product goes to Canada to find its way among the lumber camps and more lumber cut means more building this season.

Joy was brought to 107 of the classified civil service men in the Charlestown Navy Yard yesterday by an increase of wages. The changes run pretty even through the classified list. The most important is in the case of an employe in the steam engineering department, who was jumped from $3.52 per day to $1,400 a year. From this the increase ranged down to 24 cents a day.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Dec. 1.—The Amoskeag company is talking of adding ginghams to its list of products. It will mean 4,000 more operatives and 10,000 more population for this city.

FALL RIVER, Dec. 1.—The American Linen Company to-day accepted plans to add 101,000 spindles, worth $200,000, to its plant.

APPONAUG, R. I., Dec. 1.—The print works here began to run nights yesterday to catch up on extra orders.

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 1.—All the jewelry concerns report heavily increasing business.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 1.—The Lane Company put on several hundred hands additional to-day and the working hours have been made longer.

THOMPSONVILLE, Ct., Dec. 1.—The Upson-Martin Company, axminster carpet makers, are beginning a large addition to their plant.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—This city will soon have a direct steamship line to New Orleans. It means a deal of added business to the merchants of both cities.

LAWRENCE, Dec. 1.—Wool sorters have been asked to work overtime. Other departments are also brisking up. The Arlington Mills say orders are coming in beyond expectations.

NORTH ANDOVER, Dec. 1.—Michael F. Campbell has again started up his silk wiping cloth plant. Orders poured in this month in a magical way, and despite his conservatism the owner had to start the mill going.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 1.—Even the whiskey business is feeling the tonic of better confidence. The month's collections for internal revenue broke records, showing a gain of $377,666.04.

BROCKTON, Dec. 1.—The Douglas plants report big business. The Kelly-Buckley Company says it has begun its biggest run. The Nesmith Shoe Company is running full and arranging for overtime. The L. Q. White factory has no idle machines.

HEAVY VOTE AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, Dec. 1.—A strenuous three-cornered fight for Mayor brought out the largest vote to-day that this city has known in a municipal election for years. At 1 o'clock the total vote in the five wards was 1,620, more than 200 heavier than it was a year ago at the same hour. Mayor Clarke, candidate for re-election, had an argument with a bluejacket from the torpedo station at the polling place in the Fifth Ward early to-day. The bluejackets opposed Clarke's candidacy because he supported the dance hall owners when the barred sailors. Herbert Bliss and Patrick J. Boyle are the other Mayoralty candidates.

DEVER, LEARY FOUGHT BY G. G. A.

The Good Government Association has begun a campaign to defeat Clerk of Committees John F. Dever and City Messenger Edward J. Leary for re-election next month, according to a Republican aldermanic candidate, who is favored by the G. G. A. One of the questions asked of aldermanic candidates, it was learned to-day, is: "If you are elected, will you vote against Dever and Leary for re-election?"

Both men have held their present offices for years undisturbed. The salary of each is $4,000 a year.

JAMES SHANNON KILLED BY TRAIN

A telegram to friends in Boston to-day announced that James Shannon, a member of Division 43 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, had been crushed to death by a freight train in the yards at Concord, N. H. He was on his way to Burlington, Vt. Just how he met his death is not known.

ELKS HONOR THEIR DEAD ON SUNDAY

Annual Memorial Service to Be Attended by Many Notable Men.

HOST EXPECTED TO ATTEND

Boston Lodge No. 10 of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, 1,100 strong, will gather in the Colonial Theatre next Sunday afternoon, when the Annual Memorial services for its dead members will be held, in keeping with the custom of the Order of the country over.

Hon. James A. Gallivan of the local lodge, will deliver the memorial address, and among other distinguished guests expected to be present are His Excellency Governor Guild and staff, Mayor Hibbard and Collector of Port George H. Lyman.

Lawrence H. Sullivan, Exalted Ruler of the Lodge, will have charge of the services. Rockett's orchestra of twenty-five pieces has been engaged.

Similar services will be held in every town and city in the entire country where there is a lodge of the Elks organized on the same day and in many instances at the same hour as that selected by the lodge in this city.

The committee in charge of the memorial services is made up of Samuel Carr, chairman; George J. Johnson, secretary; Emile Berger, William H. Sullivan and Norman H. Ritchie. This committee has spared neither effort nor expense to make the occasion a fitting tribute to those who have passed into the great beyond since the order was first instituted in this city in 1878, and the Colonial Theatre will undoubtedly be taxed to its full seating capacity "when the clock strikes eleven," the sign of the order at the funeral services of all members whatever the time of the day when they are held.

Next Sunday's AMERICAN will contain a feature that will be of the greatest interest to every member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. If you are an Elk or the friend of an Elk buy next Sunday's AMERICAN. It will please you.

POLICE SHIFTS AT CAMBRIDGE

Shifts in the Cambridge police department were announced to-day by Chief Pullen as follows:

Reserve Officer John Cummings of the Central square station is transferred to the East Cambridge station.

Patrolman Frank Gutski of the Central square station to sub-station 4, North Cambridge.

Patrolman William H. Howe from the Central square station to sub-station 4, North Cambridge.

Reserve Officer Michael C. Curren of the Brattle square station to Central square station.

Patrolman Tony Diehl of sub-station 4, North Cambridge, to Central square station.

In the Brattle square station Patrolman John Powers and William Hill change routes.

Patrolman Ellis of the Central square station, is appointed clerk to the chief, property clerk, official in charge of the Bertillon system of measurements, finger print clerk, and official photographer at the chief's office.

ELOPE AND WED IN PROVIDENCE

"Yes, we eloped and were secretely married in Providence yesterday. There's no need of denying that the knot was tied any longer, but really there's no romance to it," chorused Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walton Russell of Metrose, who returned from Gretna Green man and wife, after a brief visit of but five hours. The groom is the proprietor of one of the largest catering establishments in Melrose and the bride was formerly Mrs. Clara Irene Robinson Krom of Portsmouth, N. H.

"Mrs. Krom was visiting her uncle, Fred Churchill, yesterday morning, and we decided that we wanted to get married in a hurry," said the groom. "So we took the 10 o'clock express for Providence. It didn't take long to procure the license. Then Rev. Alexander Mitchell of the Providence Presbyterian Church tied the knot for us. Two members of the family acted as witnesses."

LABOR APPEALS FOR LICENSE

The Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor to-day issued an appeal in pamphlet form to its affiliated members to vote and work against the "no-license" policy on the ground that it is only part of a general prohibition of the sale of malt and spirituous liquors. To destroy the manufacture of these products, the appeals says, means to throw hundreds of thousands of fellow-trades unionists out of employment.

Prohibition is denounced as having failed in Rhode Island, Maine, Georgia and Alabama. The appeal is signed by President Philip H. Sweet, the five vice-presidents and the secretary-treasurer, D. D. Driscoll of the A. F. of L.

ARREST TRIO FOR ATTACKING OFFICER

Alexander Nixon of No. 268 Dorchester street, Charles Daly of No. 171 Sixth street and Chester Wilder of No. 375 West Third street, all of South Boston, were held in the sum of $300 each for the Grand Jury by Judge Fallon in the South Boston District Court this morning on a charge of attacking Patrolman Ridlon of Station 6. Early last Sunday morning Patrolman Ridlon attempted to arrest Arthur Wilcox in front of a hotel on Broadway, near Dorchester street, when the three prisoners attempted to get him away from the officer. Patrolman Dunbar, who came upon the scene at that time, went to the assistance of his brother patrolman, and they gave chase to the men, firing several shots after them.

10,000,000 POUNDS IN BUTTER CORNER

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Just plain bread without butter will have to be good enough for the average man if reports about the big butter corner prove true. With a million dollars worth of the product in storage, it is said that after the end of the year prices will sky-rocket.

Commission dealers in New York, Boston, Chicago and Elgin are credited with being in the deal. They are said to have nearly 10,000,000 pounds in storage.

LEAGUE MEN WITHDRAW FOR BROCK AND LEE

William F. Shaw of Ward 16 and Samuel P. Whitcomb of Ward 24, Independence League nominees for School Committee, to-day formally filed their withdrawals with the Board of Election Commissioners and urged the officers of the convention which nominated them to substitute in their places the names of George E. Brock and Joseph Lee, the Democratic-Republican nominees.

Shaw and Whitcomb issued the following statement:

"Our withdrawal is the result of an understanding before we were nominated, that, in the event of an agreement between the two old parties on two School Committee candidates, we should retire and urge the adoption of the bi-party nominees.

"WILLIAM F. SHAW.
"SAMUEL P. WHITCOMB."

The Brock-Lee ticket is indorsed by the Good Government Association and the Public School Association.

JEWISH WOMEN IN CONVENTION

CINCINNATI, Dec. 1.—The fifth triennial convention of the Council of Jewish Women opened to-day in this city with delegates present representing every section of the United States.

The morning was given over to meetings of all the national committees and registration.

Among the well-known women present are Mrs. Pauline Rosenberg of Pittsburg, president of the National body; Mrs. Hannah C. Solomon of Chicago, honorary president; Mrs. Lizzie F. Barbe of Chicago, first vice-president; Mrs. Melida Pappe of Sioux City, second vice-president; Mrs. Jennie Strouse of Baltimore, recording secreary; Mrs. Rebecca Judah of Louisville, treasurer; Mrs. Marion L. Misch of Providence, R. I., auditor; Miss Sadie American of New York city, executive secretary.

Following the session to-day there will be another this evening when the annual address of the president will be made.

MIND READERS DISPLAY POWER

Prof. Zancig and his wife, renowned as mind readers, at noon to-day gave a practical demonstration of their powers at a special performance in the Orpheum Theatre, where they are appearing this week, to an audience composed of physicians, college professors, students of mental science and newspaper men, and proved their ability to transmit thought from one to the other.

With the assistance of a number of slates and chalk he had persons in the audience mark down numbers, which were immediately deciphered by Mrs. Zancig on a large blackboard on the stage. Then he passed among the people and secured cards, bank checks, railroad passes, match boxes and other articles, which were described by Mrs. Zancig, who remained on the stage with her back to the audience.

Another featureof the demonstration was the reading of passages from books by Mrs. Zancig, the books being held by persons in the audience.

WITHDRAW TROOPS; JERSEY STRIKE OFF

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Half of the men who were out on strikes at the works of the National Fire Proofing Company at Keasbey, near Perth Amboy, N. J., accepted the concessions made by the concern to-day and went back to work. There was no disorder or opposition from the men who still refused to return as they stood about the plant watching their fellow workmen. Following the return of the men the two companies of militia still remaining to-day broke up their quarters and started for their home towns. Two plants were immediately started with full forces, and a third was started in part.

TWO BOLD DAYLIGHT BREAKS IN ROXBURY

That two daring burglaries, in which property valued at $550 was stolen, were committed in the Roxbury district last Friday in broad daylight became known to-day. The police have failed to find any trace of the stolen property. Silverware and jewelry valued at $150 were stolen from the flat of W. H. Stewart, No. 152 Thornton street. Jewelry, silverware and clothing valued at $400 were stolen from the flat of Percival Carmichael, No. 4 Ellis street.

DR. HUGHES TO TRY FOR PLACE ON THE BALLOT

Appeals to Ballot Law Commission From Election Board Ruling.

SEEKS THE SCHOOL BOARD

Dr. Laura A. C. Hughes, who was one of the late candidates to enter the contest for the Boston School Committee and whose nomination papers were rejected by the Board of Election Commissioners on the ground that the required number of signatures of legal voters was not on the papers, does not think that she has received justice, and announces that she will appeal to the State Ballot Law Commission.

The Election Commissioners announced that only 473 of the names on Dr. Hughes' petition were valid.

The time for filing nominations expired at 5 o'clock last evening.

The Socialists candidates for school committee are Dr. George Galvin and Jeremiah Ryan.

The only Democratic independent candidate for Alderman who filed papers was Alderman John E. Baldwin of South Boston. The Socialist candidates filed were: Frank N. Wiley, William H. Handrahan, John J. McGettrick, Ira E. Worcester, Thomas Burke, Jacob Haertl and Leon Weiner. John F. Molloy is the Socialist candidate for street commissioner.

There are three independent candidates for the Common Council in Ward 6; John H. Anderson, Thomas L. Brackett and Peter Brown. The other independent candidates are James Doyle in Ward 13 and Walter C. Brown in Ward 21.

SAYS HUSBAND STRUCK HER

Charging that her husband, John Henry Parks, Jr., threw her out of bed and later pointed a revolver at her and threatened to take her life, Mrs. Madge Charlotte Parks of Woburn, to-day, filed a petition in the East Cambridge Court for a separation.

Mrs. Parks says that on November 7, last, her husband came home, and finding her in bed, threw her out. The next day, she declares, he hit her with his fist. She left him on the 14th and went to live with her sister. Her husband hunted her up, Mrs. Parks says, and threatened to shoot her. They have two children.

Mrs. Amy Howell of Melrose also filed a separation petition in the East Cambridge Court against her husband, Martin H. Howell, who, she avers, is paying attention to another woman in Dorchester. She filed an attachment of $500 on property that her husband owns. They have four children.

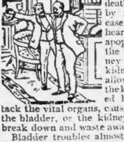
MOTH FIGHTER ELECTROCUTED

AMESBURY, Dec. 1.—Clarence Cameron of Newburyport, employed by the town of Amesbury in the brown tail moth brigade, was instantly electrocuted before noon to-day when he climbed a telegraph pole in Patton hollow to clip the moths from a branch he could not otherwise reach.

The ten-feet clipping pole which Cameron used in some way struck an electric light wire and the whole current passed through is body killing him instantly. He was found lying dead at the foot of the pole a few minutes later. Cameron was thirty years of age and single.

PARENTS ORDER DAUGHTER'S ARREST

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Bianchi Baldi, who as Conchetti d'Amato, seventeen years old, eloped from Springfield, Mass., about two weeks ago, and was married in Wilmington, Del., was arrested here late yesterday on instructions from the Springfield authorities. The bride was held to await the action of her parents. No charge was lodged against the husband, and he was released.



The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

ROUSE IS COMING HOME

BY TAD.

Rouse O'Brien will come back to America as soon as he can. While training for Summers his head bothered him some and the examining physician declared that the old trouble, concussion of the brain, which put O'Brien in bed a year ago, had come back.

Jack Goldswain meets Summers instead, and if he wins intends to visit this country.

James Britt has deposited $500 with a London sporting writer, challenging Summers. He insists upon fifteen or twenty rounds, however, and wants three minute spells of fighting instead of two.

• • •

The London Sportsman is tickled to death with the showing that Driscoll, Welch and Moran have made over here, and giggles inwardly at our champions. It says that Driscoll and Welch can get back for any amount now, and adds further that these three first mentioned are the best men that England has had under her colors since the days of Peter Jackson.

A committee of five journalists who were to have straightened out wrestling met in London last week, and after five hours' work sent out a lot of dope. They barred the double Nelson, the strangle and toe holds and suggested that Frank Gotch meet Lemm, a Swiss wrestler, and that Hack meet Yblisco, the winners to meet for the championship of the world. Gotch and Hack said nix, and the new board, it is said, will be buried soon. What a fat chance a board like that would have over here telling fighters whom they should fight.

The first day Jim Corbett saw Stanley Ketchel work he went back to town and told the 'Frisco scribes that "Ketchel was a pugilistic Hans Wagner. You never can tell what he's going to do next," piped Jim.

Just about hits the nail on the head, too.

WHITE SOX PITCHERS GOOD FIELDERS

In looking over the fielding averages of the American League pitchers, one noticeable feature is the number of putouts credited to the Chicago Club's pitchers, says Addie Joss.

Walsh had 41, White 28, Smith 23 and Altrock in 23 games had 21. Walsh led the league in this respect, having the advantage of participating in many more games than any other twirler. "Doc" White led the others and Smith was next, being tied with one man for third honors.

As a pitcher usually gets most of his putouts by covering first base, the Chicago twirlers seem to have a little something on their rivals in this department of the game.

Comiskey, the owner of the Chicago Club was in his time one of the greatest first basemen the game has ever seen, and one of the first men who saw the advantages to be gained by having the pitcher cover first base on all drives towards right field.

Ever since he became a club owner "Commy" has always had a first baseman who used this method, and naturally all the pitchers who expect to secure a permanent berth on the "Old Roman's" club are drilled to cover the bag until it has become almost second nature.

GIBSON TRAINS ON RABBITS

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 1.—Keeping in condition trying to run a jackrabbit down each day is the new stunt being tried by Catcher George Gibson of the Pirates, at his home near London, Ont. Barney Dreyfuss to-day received a letter from Gibson, which reads in part as follows:

"I had a letter from Chief Wilson the other day. All he writes about is hunting. He says the quail are so thick where he is that you have to cut a path through them when you go hunting. Nothing like that up here. I have seen a lone jackrabbit this Fall, and I have been chasing him to keep in condition, but to date I have not captured him. He is the limit for speed. One jump and he lands in the next county. He would make a good trainer. If I can catch him alive I will take him to Hot Springs and let the boys get in condition by chasing him."

WRESTLER HAS CLASSY NAME

Fitzsimmons is the name of a German-American wrestler who just now is seeking recognition from the big grapplers. Fitzsimmons is an assumed name, the big fellow preferring that to his own name for private reasons.

He has met and defeated most of the big men in Europe, but isn't boastful enough to claim that he has defeated everybody under the sun. He is honest enough to admit that he wrestled several draws with European giants. Fitzsimmons is about the classiest wrestler that ever visited America. He speaks English without the trace of any foreign accent and in addition can talk in eight other languages perfectly.

BOXERS BACK FROM SOUTH

Joe Sullivan and his bevy of boxers will return from Savannah early this week. The mitt artists say the game is flourishing down there, but it is a question if boxing would pay under ordinary circumstances. The visitors to the auto races were the best patrons this week. Some of the boxers who appeared in Savannah expect to go back shortly to appear in star bouts at the Southern A. C.

KETCHEL BUYS NEW MOTOR

Stanley Ketchel is going to buy a more expensive automobile than the one which he sold a short time ago and then bet the proceeds on himself. Ketchel is a reckless driver. Only a few days ago he drove his machine into a collision with a street car in San Francisco and narrowly escaped serious injury.

SAILOR BURKE NOW WANTS TO FIGHT KETCHEL

Sailor Burke, after his victory over Joe Thomas, the Californian, who fought Stanley Ketchel three times, is now in pursuit of big game. The marine is out with challenges to Champion Ketchel and Billy Papke, the former middleweight title holder. Burke is also willing to take on Thomas again, to show that his last victory was not due to Thomas's lack of training. Billy Madden, who handles the affairs of the Sailor, thinks that his man is as good as any of them, and honestly thinks Burke will put Ketchel away for the count.

Burke has been idle since his bout with Papke several months ago, but during that time he kept himself in perfect trim. Burke makes no mention for a bout with Sam Langford, the burly negro who has been the Nemesis of many an aspiring middleweight and heavyweight boxer. It's Ketchel that Burke wants most, and he is willing to go any distance for any consideration in order to get a whack at the title.

Ketchel will probably turn up his nose to a match with Burke, but Madden says that in due time he will force the champion to recognize his sailor bold. Papke will undoubtedly take on the Sailor again, as the "Illinois Thunderbolt" beat Burke handily in the recent go between the pair.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Hugo Kelly, the Chicago middleweight, has arrived in Los Angeles with his trainer "Molly" McDonald. Kelly is sure he can beat Papke after seeing the way the Illinois Thunderbolt was handled by Ketchel. Kelly will train at Santa Monica.

"Fighting" Dick Hyland and "Bohemian" George Memsic will figure as the principals in the next lightweight battle to be staged by the Pacific Athletic Club, Los Angeles. These two sturdy youngsters will meet in a scheduled ten-round, no decision bout in the Naud Junction ring on the night of December 18.

Jimmy Coffroth was hit for fully $5,000 when the guarantees were doled out to Ketchel and Papke. Jack Gleason's roar put the seas out at the Cliff House to shame when he heard about it. If Gleason can only collect the $2,000 forfeit posted by the fighters who eloped from him, he will be entirely satisfied with life.

Freddie Welsh is to have the preference over Packy McFarland when Battling Nelson decides to enter the ring again. "I consider Welsh more eligible than McFarland," says Nelson. "I will certainly talk business with the Englishman later on. My time will be taken up until the latter part of January."

Boxing bouts this week at Philadelphia are: Tuesday, Douglas A. C.—Tommy Langdon of Philadelphia and Frankie Madole of Pittsburg; Wednesday, Wayne A. C.—Patsy Reardon of Nicetown and "Dimp" O'Donnell of Manayunk; Thursday, Broadway A. C.—Unk Russell of Philadelphia and Tommy Crawford of San Francisco; Friday, Nonpareil A. C.—Five star bouts; Saturday, National A. C.—Jim Driscoll of England and Grover Hayes of Chicago.

Young Corbett walks around Broadway looking

Bill Papke's defeat spoiled plans that the former middleweight champion had made to go abroad. Papke had been figuring on going to London just after New Year's and expected to take Al Kaufman with him. "Peggy" Bettinson, matchmaker of the National Sporting Club, London, has been corresponding with Papke in regard to a match between the "Thunderbolt" and an English middleweight named Thomas. The Thanksgiving Day fight upset Papke's plans, however, and he will remain here and endeavor to get another whack at Ketchel for the title.

BIGGER GRAND CIRCUIT MEET FOR DETROIT

DETROIT, Dec. 1.—No word will be given out regarding the 1909 Blue Ribbon meeting until after the annual meeting of the Detroit Driving Club in January. However, Kalamazoo is setting such a dizzy pace that Detroit may have to enlarge a little. The latest news from Kalamazoo is to the effect that the genial secretary, "Bill" Engelman, is figuring on a $25,000 handicap. The regular card of about $35,000 is in addition. While it seems like a staggering sum, nothing is impossible with Kalamazoo.

Speaking of San Francisco, there is a strong likelihood of that horse, now in the Geers stable, coming here to make a season at another of the new farms. The deal is now on between owner Hodges and the man who has the farm. As there are no Zombros up this way, it is believed that he would be popular in the vicinity.

James E. Burns has sold his stallion Abdell, 2:17¼, to Canadian parties. There are a number of Abdell colts in Oakland Country and they are good looking and can show speed.

The Short Ship Circuit meeting at Flint, held during the same week last Summer that the big doings were on at Kalamazoo, was such a success that it has enthused horsemen thereabouts. Flint has had the habit of sending a fast one down the big line now and then, and Trainer Frank Stone says he has seen a number of good colts there. They are by Allanwood, p., 2:04¼, now in the town, and by Ollie J., 2:19¼, a son of Sidney.

William T. Hubbard of Toledo, O., was over the other day and says that he has bred his mare, Susie N., 3, 2:09¾, to Allen Winter, 2:06¼. The pair are in Vance Nuckols's stable at Cleveland, and if the mare proves in foal the young thing will be worth thinking about.

Frank H. Colby is wintering just three dozen at Romeo and expects a few recruits soon.

GIANTS WILL PLAY TIGERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Both New York teams now are figuring on their exhibition schedules. The Giants have decided to train in Marlin, Texas, and, following their plans of last year, will play exhibition games on Saturdays and Sundays in Fort Worth and Dallas.

Hughey Jennings, manager of the Detroit Americans, has put in an application for three games with McGraw's men, and he will be accommodated. These contests will be played in San Antonio, where the Tigers will make their headquarters. Secretary Knowles expects to have the Spring route of the Giants arranged by December 1. Yale, as usual, will get the opening date on the Polo Grounds.

Manager Stallings and Secretary Nahon of the Highlanders, already have clinched three dates for the Hilltoppers. The Farrellites will exhibit before the citizens of Richmond, Va., on April 9, 10 and 12, and will work their way back to New York through Baltimore, Princeton and Newark.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

BOXING.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Jimmy Britt, the San Francisco lightweight, and Johnny Summers, the English lightweight, are arranging to fight February 22 for a purse of $4,000 offered by the National Sporting Club.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 1.—Kid Fredericks of Pottsville put out Jeff Bowers of Shenandoah in the second round at St. Clair.

JACK McAULIFFE, one of the few champions who retired before losing his title, began a week's engagement at the Old Howard yesterday afternoon, and the old timer was given a great reception.

UTICA, Dec. 1.—Jeff O'Connell of New England led Billy Allen in the first few rounds, but toward the close Allen got in some heavy jaw blows and drove O'Connell through the ropes.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Before the Bijou Athletic Club of this city "Harlem Tommy" Murphy and "Paddy" Sullivan, both of New York, fought six rounds. Murphy outpointed his opponent.

SALEM, Dec. 1.—Young Sydney of Boston had a close call in the fourth round of the eight-round contest against Kid Howell of Providence, at the Young Men's Club. Sydney came strong at the finish and the verdict was a draw. Willie O'Brien and Young Nadeau went six rounds to a draw, and Young Carroll of South Boston made Kid Lebreau quit in two rounds.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE Boston Athletic Association is to build a fourteen-lap outdoor board track, the same dimensions exactly as that of the Mechanics Hall surface, over which it holds its annual track games, on the old Irvington Oval, Irvington street.

MELBOURNE, Dec. 1.—The Australian players won the right to retain the Davis cup, finally defeating Wright and Alexander, the American contestants.

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 1.—Clark Walworth Tobin, '10, was unanimously elected captain of the Dartmouth football team for the coming year. Tobin has played on the college football team for three years as left guard.

ROLLER POLO RESULTS.—At Fall River, Fall River 11, Worcester 5; at Bridgeport, Bridgeport 10, Providence 4.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 1.—T. A. D. Jones, who was an assistant coach at Yale this Fall, is in line for head coach next Fall of the University of Indiana football team.

WORCESTER, Dec. 1.—Manager T. F. Moonan of the Holy Cross basketball team announced the schedule as follows: Dartmouth, Tufts, two games each; Trinity, Boston College, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Worcester Technology, Brown and Wesleyan.

BASEBALL.

HAVANA, Dec. 1.—By a score of 6 to 4 the Havana baseball club beat the Cincinnatis.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—President P. T. Powers of the Eastern Baseball League issued a call for a meeting in this city December 6 of the owners of the bolting clubs of that league and of the American Association to ratify and carry out recommendations presented by the committee appointed at Buffalo a fortnight ago relative to the appeal to the national commission for higher classification.

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 1.—Manager Babcock of the Brown baseball team announced that two games have been arranged between Brown and Holy Cross for next year.

Quaker Boxer Ready for Quill

ERNE IS IN FINE SHAPE

Young Erne, the clever Philadelphia boxer, who meets Tommy Quill of Brockton at the Armory Club to-night, arrived in this city last evening, accompanied by his manager, Billy McCarney. In the party were Jack Fitzgerald, who will meet Billy Rolfe, and Johnny Loftus, the well known trainer.

Erne's appearance denotes that he has undergone a thorough preparation for the contest this evening. The glow of health gleams from his eyes, and his skin is as rosy as a schoolgirl's. He is active as a kitten and confident that to-night the honors of victory will be his when the end of the bout has been reached.

Erne has always been anxious to score a victory over Quill. He believes that he was entitled to the decision over Quill when he met him the first time at the Armory Club.

And the Philadelphia lad certainly got the worst of the decision in his recent bout against Eddie Murphy, the South Boston boxer.

These facts have had a tendency in the minds of the fair play lovers to hope that Erne wins to-night. He has always given satisfaction in every bout he has engaged in hereabouts, and he will have many well-wishers at the ringside to-night.

Quill has paid especial attention to his training for the contest to-night, and if reports from Brockton are accurate he will prove a surprise to those who believe that Quill's best days as a boxer have faded into the past.

Quill realizes that he must win to-night or be eliminated from further consideration with first-class opponents, and this has made him especially eager to be physically fit so that he can go the distance at top speed the whole route.

Billy Rolfe meets Jack Fitzgerald in the semi-final, and Young McDonald will meet Young Nixon of Cambridge in the opening bout.

Charley Griffin, the Australian, who meets Jem Driscoll, the English wonder, at the Armory Club next Tuesday night, has demonstrated that he is a good lad by his bouts in New York. He is a boxer who always keeps going, and is sure to put up a splendid setto.

Frankie Neil, the California boxer, has fully recovered from the injury to his knee and is anxious to box Owen Moran at the Armory Club before he returns to the Pacific Coast.

Jim McCullough of Belfast, Ireland, a lad who is said to be a second Ike Weir, and who has won several victories in Rhode Island since he arrived in this country, meets Young Limerick of Haverhill at the Armory Club December 8.

NEW INDOOR A. A. U. RECORDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—In the A. A. U. games at the Madison Square Garden a big surprise was sprung in the 1,000-yard run when Mel Sheppard, of the Irish American A. C. was beaten by ten yards by Harry Gissing, unattached, who created a new indoor record by covering the distance in 2:20.

P. McDonald, of the I. A. A. C. broke the world's record for putting the 56-pound weight with 16 feet ⅝ inches, clipping ⅝ inch of the old mark. Mike Driscoll, of the Mercury A. C. made an indoor record for the two miles with a mark of 9:28 2-5.

Martin Sheridan [illegible] his shoulder in the pole vault and had to retire.

NO FLASKS FOR YALE RUNNERS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Dec. 1.—Prospects for a strong Yale track team this year have received their first severe blow in the loss of "Randy" Reynolds, the distance runner and the son of Professor Reynolds, of the Law School. Reynolds has been one of Yale's best two-milers, but on account of his health he has had to give up running.

Several members of the cross-country team have been suffering from stomach trouble lately, owing to the long runs in the cold. They are not allowed to take brandy or other stimulants, and after going several miles breathing in the cold air the runners become weak. A movement has been started by some of the men to carry a small flask the way the Cornell runners do, but so far this has been unsuccessful.

HORSE NEWS TRACK GOSSIP

In Bisa and Melva J., Walter Cox will have two of the best trotters of 1909.

The foreigners secured a bargain when they got the handsome trotting stallion, The Zoo, 2:09, for $4,650.

Citation, unbeaten in thirteen races last year, started in fifteen races this season, winning twelve races and reducing her record from 2:03¼ to 2:01¾.

Good judges who have seen the yearling colt, Baron Todd, step this Fall say that he is one of the best trotters of the age they have ever seen.

The Dorchester Gentlemen's Driving Club will hold its annual banquet at the Quincy House Thursday evening, December 10. Members of other driving clubs are cordially invited to attend.

The credit of trotting the greatest number of races of any mile track campaigner in 1908 belongs to Brace Girdle, 2:09¼. She started twenty-two times and in the third heat of her twenty-second trotted in 2:09¾.

The Metropolitan Driving Club will open its Winter series of entertainments at the Charles River Speedway, with a dance on Wednesday evening. The cups for the Fall series of matinees will also be presented to the winners.

Fred Hyde of New Haven recently sold to P. Donahue of Hartford the three-year-old brown colt Scientia, by Admiral Dewey, 2:04¾, out of Lacyneer, 2:27, dam of four trotters in the list, by Electioneer. Fred regards this colt as the making of a very fast trotter.

C. K. G. Billings purchased Tempus Fugit, 2:07¾, and Alexander, 2:09½, at the New York sale and added them to his stable of fast record saddle horses. Besides the two trotters mentioned Mr. Billings is using under saddle Turley, 2:07¾, Charley Mac, 2:07¾; Frank A., 2:11¼; Delight, trial 2:09, and Piquith, matinee record 2:11.

Billy Wilkes, who has raced so well on the speedway this Fall for G. W. Gove, is a son of Sabies Wilkes, 2:18, and Martha Wilkes, 2:08.

The weanling by Kinster, 2:14½, out of Maggie Sultan, dam of Nico, 2:08¼, will be sent to Bob Proctor for development. The youngster is owned in Philadelphia.

Gambetta Wilkes, 2:19¼, has 203 standard performers to his credit. One hundred of them are trotters.

Alfred Vanderbilt has placed an order for two trotters to be used on his coaches in England next season.

Harrie Jones is wintering a big string at Rushville, Ind., including the New England horse John Ward, 2:05¾.

Druen, the four-year-old Onward Silver pacer who brought $3,300 at the New York sale, goes into Ed Benyon's stable.

The running horse folks in New York are much elated over the court decision which held that private betting is not a crime.

Belder, 2:16¾, by Chimes is regarded by many as the making of a high-class pacer. In the races this season he won seven firsts.

Henry Titer secured a prize for "Sam" Corey at the New York sale when he bought the two-year-old filly Czarina Bingen for $1,350.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Who says fame is worthless? Mordecai Brown cashed his reputation out in Indiana the other day. Brown and some friends were hunting quail, and in following a fine covey strayed on some "posted" property. An irate German farmer captured the party and was arranging to take them before a justice of the peace. He was told that Brown was one of his prisoners, but refused to believe it until the three-fingered "phenom" exhibited his maimed hand. Then the farmer changed front, invited the hunters to dinner and gave them permission to hunt on his acres as long as they cared to.

Frank Isbell wants to get away from the White Sox to manage and play first base for the Wichita team, of which he is the principal owner. "The popcorn man and I are the only ones left of the St. Paul bunch that Comiskey brought to Chicago," says Isbell, "and he don't like me." But Comiskey is unwilling to release the veteran.

Memphis has drafted Catcher Schmidt, a brother of the Detroit backstop. He was in the Arkansas League last season.

Frank Dillon, the former Brooklyn first baseman, has just been appointed manager of the Los Angeles club. He owns a big slice of the stock and won the pennant this Fall.

John J. McGrath, the New York baseball "scout," was the boy who landed "Hank" Mathewson for the Savannah club. McGrath is planning to send a dozen local semi-professionals to different minor leagues in the Spring.

Frank Huelsman, the former St. Louis and Washington outfielder, will get another trial in fast company. Huelsman murdered the ball for Harrisburg last Spring and was grabbed by Connie Mack, who hopes to fill Seybold's place in right field with the giant outfielder.

Savannah is going to have a near-celebrity with its ball club next season. He is Hank Mathewson, a brother of Christy. Hank is a good ball player and is said to have enough ability to make his way through the game without having to depend on his brother's reputation.

"Dummy" Taylor, of the New York Giants, did not register a single run during last season, but the Kansas grocer points with pride to the fact that he hit in excess of .200, which is the first season in his career that he has achieved this feat.

Garry Herrmann puts a quietus to the rumor that Mowrey is to be traded for Steinfeldt. "There is absolutely nothing to it; nothing, absolutely nothing," declares the Reds' boss.

The Cincinnati Reds will have a new trainer next season in the person of a local man named Schmidt. The 1908 trainer, Chris Clone, has been tendered several offers and is considering one from New York.

John J. McCloskey, who has managed the Cardinals for two seasons, is organizing a new league made up of Salt Lake, Boise, Ogden, Butte, Helena and Pocatello.

Many sporting writers of the East are claiming that baseball is more dangerous than football, using the argument that so far this season there have been no less than a dozen deaths and about 20 serious injuries, while baseball the past season claimed 17.

HILLIARD IS BACK FROM SAVANNAH

By J. C. KERRISON.

The 200-mile reliability and endurance contest of the Worcester Automobile Club will be held on December 12, and should result in some interesting competition. The rules of this run are sufficiently numerous to fill a twelve-page pamphlet, and cause considerable thought and study on the part of those who are to drive cars in the same.

The cars will all go under the inspections of a technical committee the day prior to the start, and at the conclusion of the run. Cars equipped with shock absorbers will be penalized for trouble connected therewith, but a car may use rubber bumpers and rebound straps for springs without penalization for trouble to the same. This to many seems a peculiar drawing of the line of penalization. Cars will be sealed before the start, and penalizations will be made for breaking of the same and for every time the hood is raised after the breaking of the original seal.

A car can be penalized for almost any and everything and the one which comes through this run with a perfect score will have performed something particularly creditable, especially if the weather conditions are any way severe.

William M. Hilliard, the winner of the light car race at Savannah, is back in Boston attending to his regular business of selling Lancia cars. Hilliard bears his honors most modestly and seems to think that there was nothing wonderful in driving to victory in that field of twenty men. Still his club mates of the Bay State Automobile Association gave him royal welcome and hearty congratulations upon his return. One thing that the race did was to make Hilliard want to drive in the Grand Prize race next season. He feels confident that with a high-powered car he can then successfully cope with the world's greatest drivers and machines, and is inclined to think that a year hence he will have an opportunity to see what he can accomplish in a big event. The car he drove at Savannah will not come to Boston, as it was sold the day following the event, much to Hilliard's disappointment, for he had intended to bring it to Boston and see what he could do with the same in whatever local events might be held.

Four 1909 models of the Rambler reached Boston on Saturday and are now attracting considerable attention at the Massachusetts avenue branch of the company. Manager Rockwell feels that with these new models on the floor he will be able to greatly strengthen the Rambler business in this section, as they are all of the very latest design and possesses the latest and best mechanical feature of a motor vehicle, such for instance as are to be found in vehicles costing twice their price. The models consist of two thirty-four horse power touring cars, a thirty-four horse power roadster and a two-cylinder touring car, each model containing the well-known and practical features.

That the automobile show which opens New Year's Eve in Grand Central Palace, New York, under management of the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association, will eclipse any previous automobile show ever held in this country from a decorative standpoint, is plain to those who have seen the statues and other decorative features now in construction at the studios of the decorators, a representative of whom has recently returned from Europe where he visited the centers of art in France, Italy, England and Germany, searching for new art ideas which will be embodied in the Grand Central Palace affair.

Artistic effects heretofore unknown in America, will cause admiration and applause by those attending the show. One of the features that will add artisticness to the palace will be twelve six-foot statues of a woman up holding an automobile wheel with flying wings. The figure is of white-ivory composition and artistically draped in flowing robes. They will be stationed on the lower balcony overlooking the main court. Other statues of much larger dimensions will be placed in the lobby, main stairways and throughout the main court and other sections of the building.

BATTLING NELSON TO RUN FOR ALDERMAN

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—B. Nelson, Alderman.

That is the way the champion lightweight of the world, 133 pounds ringside, hopes to sign his name before long. In other words, the Battler, the pride of Hegewisch, is an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for alderman from the Eighth Ward, against Alderman Pat Monihan. Hegewisch, which is in the Eighth Ward, is a unit for its glittering star of the fistic arena, and the Republican bosses of the ward are perturbed.

"Bat's" friends are up early and late working with the voters for the champion's nomination.

FISH IS HARVARD'S CAPTAIN

All the Harvard football men who played in the Yale game had a vote in electing Hamilton Fish, Jr., captain of the Harvard football team for the season of 1909.

Fish prepared for college at St. Mark's School, where he played left tackle, captaining the team in his last year. He was regular tackle on his freshman team two years ago, and for the past two seasons has been regular right tackle on the University team. He is a player of extremely high caliber and is exceptionally good in handling the forward pass. He has already been the choice of the All-American teams that have been gotten out, and will doubtless land on Walter Camp's eleven.

During the latter part of the past season he served as acting captain, when Burr was obliged to withdraw from the game because of his injury, and proved himself to be an exceptionally good leader. He has a perfect knowledge of the game and is always quick to challenge the referee on any violation of the rules. Fish is twenty years old, six feet three inches tall and weighs 200 pounds. He is very fast for a man of his weight and is often down the field with the ends.

GOOD MORGAN SIRE FOUND NEGLECTED

LYNDON, Vt., Dec. 1.—At this place is located the Cahoon Farm of E. H. Hoffman, Morgan breeder and expert and his first sale was a pair of Morgans, which were driven by Mrs. Cleveland, wife of ex-President Cleveland, at Buzzards Bay. This team was bay in color and got by Ethan Allen 3d.

Mr. Hoffman has the old horse now, and at twenty-three years of age he is strong and robust, his owner having rescued him from ill-usage and neglect. He found him in an obscure section of New Hampshire, turned loose in a box with a jack and he will wear the marks of bites and kicks bestowed by his stable companion as long as he lives.

Irving Lambert, Mr. Hoffman's young stallion, by Lambert B., 2:22¼, has developed and improved much within the year and is now taking a few speed lessons. He would do well in the tan bark ring.

C. C. Stillman of New York has a couple of Morgans here that are high class, a four-year-old stallion by A. R. Van Tassell's Bob Morgan, and a two-year-old chestnut filly by Knox Morgan, a winner.

FIGHT LID OFF IN MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 1.—The lifting of the Milwaukee boxing lid, clamped down by Governor Davidson when the campaign was at its height, is scheduled to take place some time during the next few weeks, with Jimmy Clabby, who did so well against Jimmy Gardner at New Orleans a couple of nights ago, as the star attraction.

It is not believed that there will be any official interference with the fight, as it was understood when the boxing game was stopped that if the fights were conducted with less publicity there would be no interference after election. Until now, however, there has been no effort to lift the lid in Milwaukee with the exception of fights at the Eagles and Milwaukee Athletic clubs. These, however, have been private affairs.

Don't fail to read the great sporting section of the Boston Sunday American. It contains all the news and many interesting features.

PAPKE TO BOX KELLY NEXT

Bill Papke expects to go right ahead with his training with the idea of stowing away Hugo Kelly at Los Angeles on Dec. 15. There was some talk of the Jeffries A. C. calling off the match or substituting Ketchel for Papke, but the champion doesn't want to fight again so soon, he says.

NARDI, A ONE-ARMED FOOTBALL PLAYER

Worcester Boy Also Plays Baseball, and Can Pull an Oar in a Race.

WORCESTER, Dec. 1.—William Nardi, a member of the local high school football squad, is probably the only one-arm football player in the State, if not in the country. He is also an adept at playing baseball and is no second-rater when it Summer he subbed in the high school eight and made a fine showing. He earned his "W" with the football team this Fall and was then obliged to quit school to help out in the fruit store run by the family in Green street.

The Nardi family lives at No. 24 Mendon street and the robust, one-arm athlete is eighteen years old. A few years ago he was sent uptown on an errand and jumped a freight to quicken the time. In jumping off the car he missed his footing and the left arm was severed above the elbow. Prior to the mishap young "Bill" was some punkins at the various pastimes, and the loss of the arm served only as a temporary check to the sport following.

While the arm was mending young Nardi attended every baseball game played by the old Worcester Eastern League club in the city and acted as mascot. "Herky Jerky" Horton, "Piggy" Ward and "Toughie" O'Hagan took a liking to the lad and they showed him how to throw curves and swing on the ball—and he took to the coaching like a duck takes to water. He used to serve up benders to the leaguers in their batting practice, and never used a glove.

Recently boys from the Nardi neighborhood played a game of football "for the suppers." The one-arm boy was there togged in his football suit and he was the whole thing. He played at left tackle. The boy's side was in bad throughout the first period of play and as a last resort the quarterback decided to let Nardi have a chance at a forward pass. Veracious onlookers and members of both teams concerned declare that Nardi made a perfect catch of a hard thrown pass and ran seventy yards to a touchdown—and the game.

SQUIRES PICKS BURNS TO WIN BOUT

DUBLIN, Dec. 1.—Not satisfied with his three defeats at the hands of Tommy Burns, Bill Squires, the Australian scrapper, wants another go with the American heavyweight. Letters received from Squires to-day say that he will challenge the winner of the Burns-Johnson bout in Australia.

Squires expresses the belief and hope that Burns will win from Johnson.

"Tommy is much too clever for the colored man," he says. "I hope he does win for I am sure that I can whip Burns in another fight. I showed myself practically his equal in our last bout and since that time I have trained hard and improved much."

STOLEN RUN HARD TO GET, SAYS JOSS

The double steal, with men on first and third, is a play that is mighty hard for the man on third to make successfully.

There is no chance for the man on third to get across the plate unless the runner at first goes through with his end. Catchers always bear in mind that when the play is attempted nine times out of ten the opposition is trying to score a run, and act accordingly.

There are several ways the club on the defence has of checkmating the move. Sometimes either the shortstop or second batsman will cover the keystone position alone, but more often the shortstop takes the bag, while the second sacker will come in about twenty feet ahead of second to take the short throw.

If he sees the man at third start for home he will grab the ball and relay it to the plate. But if he sees that the runner at third is staying close to the bag, he will let the toss go through to the shortstop.

That is where the man at first must get in the game. If he stops on his way to second, and shows that he is not going through with the play, the enemy has plenty of time to make sure the man at third is not going home, and still have ample opportunity to catch him.

Then, again, the catcher may throw to the pitcher instead of second and woe unto the base runner who is led into this trap, as there is never a chance for him to get away from the twirler's relay to third.

WILL RACE ON ICE.

Of the many horsemen that will break into the Winter sport this year the irrepressible James (Strike-breaker) Farley of Plattsburg, N. Y., and Ed Sunderlin of Lebanon, N. H., will be most prominent, and each one will be out with a strong stable. Several New York and Buffalo parties are also talking of trying Winter racing.

HAYDEN TAKES HIGHEST STICK HONORS IN A.A.

According to the batting averages of the American Association compiled by the secretary of that league and issued by President John D. O'Brien, John Hayden, the utility outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, and formerly a member of the Louisville team of the American Association, is the leading batter of that organization. Hayden was also on the Boston American team two years ago.

The diminutive gardener, although he ranks sixth in the percentages, is really the leading performer with the willow. Hayden participated in 154 games and hit the ball for the good average of .316. "Cheerful Charley" Hickman, who has been a member of almost every club in the American League circuit, is literally the leader. Hickman took part in only 47 games, and he batted .409.

Of the men who were in the American Association last year but who now are connected with major league teams, with the exception of Hayden, Louis Durham, of Indianapolis, the newly acquired pitcher of the Giants, shows the way with the fine average, considering that he is a pitcher, of .271. Durham's team mate, "Rube" Marquard, the $11,000 phenom, played in forty-seven games and batted .169. Young Bush of Indianapolis, who did so much to place the Tigers at the head of the American League, batted very poorly in the Association last year. Bush finished in the select class in the American League, batting .300. In the Association Bush finished near the bottom of the list, with .247. Charley Perrine, late with Louisville and now with the Cleveland Naps, batted .230 in 147 battles.

Ten men batted over .300 in the Association last year, and of this number but four were regular performers.

CUBS WILL INVADE CUBA IN SPRING

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—President Charles W. Murphy has returned from his vacation trip to Cuba and sprang the announcement that the Cubs would spend part of their Spring training season on the island. The plan was decided on by the West Side executive while he was in Havana, but the earlier plans to start the limbering up work at Shreveport will not be superseded by the new one.

While observing the great interest in the barn-storming games played by Bancroft's Cincinnati team in the cities of Cuba within the last few weeks, President Murphy was importuned by leading magnates and fans of the baby republic to bring the all-conquering Cubs to the island next Spring. There is confidence among the rooters of Havana and Santiago that Cuba has become Americanized to an extent sufficient to warrant its diamond stars mixing with the world-beaters.

"I made arrangements for the preliminary training of the team at Shreveport. Manager Chance already has arranged that the pitchers go to Hot Springs, Ark., early in March. The rest of the team will meet at West Baden, Ind., the middle of that month. I will go back to Havana probably next month and expect to close for a series of games in Havana and the principal cities of the island.

"I have not heard from Manager Chance, but expect to find a letter from him when I reach the office to-morrow. There is no trouble between us and everything is lovely.

"The Cubans seem to doubt that the Cubs are the best ever," said Murphy, "and I determined to lead the team in an invasion of the island if for nothing more than to show our title of world's champions had been earned.

"There are a lot of good ball players in the island," continued the Cub leader. "The great trouble is that a number of the best ones are of dusky shade, and as a matter of fact most of the teams look like spade flushes. The Cuban colored people, however, are good ball players. They learn a lot from the American colored players who visit the island and sign for the Winter season with the local clubs. Hill of the Leland Giants plays on one team, and Rube Foster is considered one of the best pitchers in the country."

FRANK CHANCE ON THE COAST

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—Frank Chance, the man who made Chicago famous, is in Los Angeles. The big, husky and honest looking leader of the Cubs, the three times winner of the world's championship, says that he is happy to be able to breathe California air again.

"How about my trouble with Murphy, did you say?

"Let's see, we did have a little argument, didn't we?

"Well, now, I don't think it would help matters for me to start talking away out here in California where everybody tries to keep happy twelve months out of each year.

"Any difference between Mr. Murphy and me will be settled by that gentleman with no outside assistance."

With this little monologue Chance dismissed the request for an interview on his recent unpleasantness with the head of the Chicago National League team.

An absorbing novel, setting forth a charming love story, written from the successful play of the same name

By THOMPSON BUCHANAN

SYNOPSIS

FRANCES DURANT, the beautiful daughter and heiress of the head of the Durant steel works, is in love with Lieutenant Sommers of the United States Navy, inventor of a marvellous new gun for naval vessels that is being cast for the first time at the Durant works.

Sommers is deeply in love with the girl, but he is not wealthy, and he knows it is commonly believed that Frances is to marry Edward Pinckney, the manager of the works.

By consummate coquetry, Frances leads Sommers almost to the point of declaring his love, when the two are interrupted by Pinckney's arrival.

Pinckney, orphaned by the suicide of his father, who had been Durant's friend, was adopted by Durant in childhood and educated by him. Both Durant and his wife, especially the latter, favored Pinckney's suit, but Frances had given him little ground for hope.

Discovering that Sommers is paying the girl too much attention, Pinckney bestirs himself and invites her to the theatre, only to find that she is going with Sommers.

"YOU'RE right there," agreed Pinckney. "I won't forget in a hurry how you handled him on the wireless telegraphy scheme."

"You're right there," agreed Pinckney. "I won't forget in a hurry how you handled him on the wireless telegraphy scheme."

"Wireless telegraphy!" exclaimed the naval man. "Do you mean to tell me that you understand wireless telegraphy, too?"

"Not very much," confessed the girl, "but I do know something about it. Edward taught me the rudiments and then I went to work myself. I got some of the men up from the shops and they rigged up a station for me at the top of the house. Father did not know a thing about it until one day I brought him up there and showed him. He didn't think it was very nice for a girl, but what could he do?"

"Oh," said Sommers, "I see your system. You do what you please and then make him agree."

"Don't you think it a good one?" inquired the girl innocently.

The man shrugged his shoulders.

"Good for little things, but how would it work for a big one?"

The question was lightly put and all three were smiling. The smiles on the men's faces were just a bit set, for behind that question both knew there was a great deal left unsaid.

Frances tossed her head lightly, but the tone of her answer was vital with disfavor.

"And on the big ones, too, Mr. Sommers. I do always what seems best to me."

Pinckney turned away sharply while the smile in the face of the naval officer became more natural and a little broader.

"You know I'd like to see this wireless room," he said. "It must be a bully place."

"Oh, it's a work room," the girl insisted, "nothing foolish about it. I'm not as good yet as Edward at sending and taking, but then I have more time to practice and if he doesn't hustle I'll beat him."

"Partners"

"You flatter me," said Pinckney. "Really, Mr. Sommers, she can beat me, I think, but we do have great fun working over it."

"Yes, Edward and I are more or less partners—in this," agreed Frances.

"Partners?"

Sommers tried to keep his tone lightly impersonal—but a little hardness had to creep in. The two men were so naturally antagonistic that probably they must have taken opposite sides on anything and the feeling of each for the girl only tended to bring out more keenly their inborn antipathy. Since the afternoon when Pinckney interrupted the practical love scene between Frances and Sommers on the hill above the works the tension had been greater than ever between the men.

Each treated the other with elaborate courtesy, but it needed only a word on either side to bring about real trouble. The more impulsive and domineering Pinckney had been close to the limit of endurance several times and on each occasion the cool courtesy, the splendid self-control and the firm good breeding of the naval officer had prevented an outbreak.

Sommers realized his position; he knew that Pinckney was the manager of the works where his gun was to be cast; he knew also that Pinckney probably in the end would marry the girl they both loved, and in many respects he had the right of way. All this had made the naval man circumspect in his dealings. He could not afford to have an open break with Pinckney.

An open fight between a naval officer on duty, as Sommers practically was, and a manager of a big gun works, must result in a court-martial and the possible disgrace of the officer, and, unless the provocation were great, it would mean bringing the uniform into disgrace by conduct which might be construed as "unbecoming an officer and gentleman." Pinckney had no one except Mr. Durant to whom he must account, and Sommers knew that a man as clever and as unscrupulous as he believed Pinckney in some ways to be would not hesitate to do anything that might put a rival in an embarrassing position. However, the naval man could not imagine for a moment that the manager could be guilty of any conduct that might injure his work. He considered the matter between them entirely a personal fight, and he believed that Pinckney's ill will would not go further than some petty spite to injure him or supplant him with Miss Durant. The thought that Pinckney and the girl were partners in a wireless telegraph scheme against his will irritated the lieutenant.

"Couldn't I see the room?" he said. "Though it does seem rather queer your having a work room instead of a music room or a studio."

"Yes, or a dressing room," he agreed. "That's the sort of thing we might expect our young women of to-day to have."

The girl tilted her chin proudly.

"Well, Mr. Doubter, if you will just come with me, I'll show you it's a real work room."

"Indeed I will," he agreed eagerly.

The girl arose.

"Come on, then."

They had almost reached the door when she remembered that Pinckney had not been included in her invitation. He was standing over by the mantel, both hands stuffed in his pockets, and was grimly looking into the fire.

"Oh, I forgot," she exclaimed. "You want to come too, Edward? If you do, come ahead."

For a second he seemed about to accept her invitation. Then she added, quickly: "But, then, it would bore you? You can come up any time."

The manager shrugged his shoulders with elaborate carelessness.

"Yes, I have something to do," he confessed.

Then, after they had gone, he turned back to the fire angrily, with a muttered exclamation.

"I'll fix that young cub."

CHAPTER V.

LIEUTENANT SOMMERS looked around at the complete little workshop in amazement. Besides the wireless outfit, he saw tools, models, sharps, a drawing table, a little work bench—everything, in fact, that it seemed to him a mechanical inventor would really need.

"You use all these!" he exclaimed.

"Why, of course," she said. "This is my fun. I work up here on dark days, and we have plenty of those in Pittsburg, you know."

The man could not have controlled his astonishment. He examined several of the models. They were on improvements in wireless telegraphy, various mechanical devices, and one even the model of a little gun.

"Oh, I've patented them all," exclaimed Frances. "I don't know that any of them amount to much, but I patented them just the same. You see, you're not the only gun inventor, Mr. Sommers."

"Then the Sommers gun has to compete with the Frances Durant gun?" he asked quizzically.

She shook her head smiling.

"No, I'll tell you a secret. I wouldn't let them make a gun of mine if I could patent it, but that is just a little model of the Rhinestrom gun which Edward has great faith in. Marsh made the model for me."

"Oh, the Rhinestrom gun!" said Sommers, with lifted eyebrows. "I've heard something of that around the works. Your man Marsh seems to have great faith in it. Who is this Rhinestrom?"

Frances shook her head.

"I don't know. Think he must be some German. Edward just told me that we had bought the patents and controlled them; but that doesn't affect our gun any, does it?"

Sommers looked up from the model he had been studying.

"Frankly," he said, "if this model is correct it won't affect my gun. The Sommers gun has the good points of this one, and a new principle which I expect will partly revolutionize things for whoever manufactures it.

"It all depends on the forging. If my gun is forged right and properly tempered, well——" He paused, then went on with a confident smile—"I don't want to brag, but, honestly, I am not afraid of any gun that ever was cast. It will all be the forging, and to-morrow will tell that. We'll put it through to-morrow night."

"Oh, I hope it goes through all right!" cried the girl. "It must go through! It would be terrible to think of a failure."

"Yes," he said grimly. "It would."

"It would mean," she asked, "the blasting of your hope?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

The Typical Inventor

"That would be a minor consideration. It would mean death to the men who are handling the gun, and court-martial and disgrace for me. You see why I'm interested."

"But there's no chance of a failure," she exclaimed, her eyes big with alarm.

He shook his head, smiling.

"Not of the Durant works, I think," he said. "That's why I was glad when the government decided to have a gun cast here. Your father's plant there has a reputation for the highest class, most careful work, so I feel safe, even if you do own patents on the Rhinestrom gun."

"You'll be here for the forging?" she asked.

"Of course," he replied. "I'll be down in the works, superintending as much as I can."

"And I," murmured the girl, half to herself, "will be up here waiting eagerly, anxiously, watching for you to come with the news that everything has gone right. Oh, what a pity it is that you should invent this gun and not get anything for your brains and labor!"

He shook his head, smiling.

"No," he said, "it's right! That's part of the contract I made with Uncle Sam when he took me at Annapolis. He educated me, gave me the chance to work, and I promised to devote my life to him.

(To Be Continued To-morrow)

AMAZING PART OF MODERN LIFE IS RUSH AND HURRY

No Time For Sufficient Exercise In Fresh Air To Maintain Digestive Organs In Good Condition.

L. T. Cooper, the man who claims that stomach trouble is responsible for most ill-health, is continuing to attract crowds of people.

Cooper is explaining his theory and medicine to the public, and at present he is the sensation of the day in New York.

While giving his opinion of the cause of so much sickness among the present generation, in a recent interview, Cooper said: "The amazing part of modern life in this city, and every other in America, is the rush and hurry. No one seems to have enough time. This very fact is responsible for much ill-health. As I have said before, poor digestion is at the bottom of all this tired, worn-out condition which afflicts modern people, but nothing is more necessary to keep the digestive organs working properly than exercise in the fresh air, and New Yorkers have no time for this.

"The daily life of the average New Yorker is about as follows: After sleeping all night in a room with a low ceiling and poor ventilation, he dresses in a rush, bolts his breakfast and runs for a car. He rides downtown in this car with the air foul from over-breathing, and works until noon shut up tight in some factory or office building. At noon a hasty lunch and then back for the rest of the day in the same close quarters. When time to quit comes he piles into a car again, jammed in with others like him, and spends thirty minutes in the stifling atmosphere getting home. He stuffs himself full of food, then goes to some theatre with more street cars to get him there, or he stays at home and sits in an easy chair.

"How long do you suppose the human stomach will perform its functions properly under such conditions? Is it any wonder that most people are half-sick? The one organ you cannot abuse and still stay well is the stomach. I am successful simply because I have a medicine that regulates and tones up over-worked stomachs that no longer digest food properly."

Among those who called on Cooper Monday afternoon was Mrs. William F. Hoffman, of 522 West One Hundred and Forty-Seventh street, who, when interviewed, said: "For several years I have been generally run down in health. Physicians diagnosed my case as nervous indigestion. I could not eat and was troubled with insomnia. I felt tired and discouraged all the time and had very little energy. I have two sisters who were also in poor health, their complaint being very much like mine; one of them, however, has had rheumatism for some years.

"Some time ago I came here, saw Mr. Cooper and got his medicine. It helped me almost at once, and I am now as well as I ever was in my life, eating well and sleeping soundly. My sisters started taking the medicine after seeing what it did for me, and it has been just as effective for them. The one who had rheumatism is now perfectly well, although she had suffered for years without relief. I consider our experience very remarkable."

Cooper's New Discovery, the medicine that is the talk of New York, is now on sale at leading drug stores throughout the United States. Ask your druggist for it.

"EMMA EAMES IN 'TOSCA' IS A BEAUTIFUL, NUN-FACED WOMAN OF ICE"--NELL BRINKLEY

Dish-Washing and Romance

The Former May Not Be Attractive, but Learn to Do It!

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I KNOW a little girl who hates to wash dishes. Deary me! but how she hates the job, and how she pouts and drags her feet along and gets her pretty face into a snarl when mother says, "Daughter, could you wash the dishes for me to-day?"

And as for taking care of the baby, that is almost a tragedy. She really feels a sad martyr when she has to entertain him for an hour, and between ourselves, I do not believe the little chap has much fun when "sister" takes care of him.

What she would like to do would be to curl up in the corner of the sofa with a box of candy and a novel—the sort of novel where the heroine wears long, clinging draperies and never soils her rosy fingers with anything so sordid as dish-washing, and the hero has dark, passionate eyes.

That is the sort of fantastic day dream this little friend of mine indulges in.

She is sound and sweet at heart, but just at present she is full of misdirected romance, and the wholesome things of life appeal to her not at all.

She Dreams, Even Over a Dishpan

For "How," she argues, "can a girl be a heroine, if she has to bury her dreams in a dishpan?"

In the meantime her wise mother insists that she learn how to cook, which is a sad blow to the would-be heroine. And instead of long, trailing draperies, she is obliged to wear skirts of a sensible length, and common sense boots. Common sense boots! Think of it, when her soul yearns for French heels!

Of course, she dreams of a hero while engaged in the prosaic duty of dish-washing.

And the Prince Charming of her dreams is not at all like her father and all the commonplace men she knows. He is tall and dashing, with a noble figure, and he is just a trifle haughty, but oh! very gentle to the maiden of his heart.

That is the man she dreams of. But the real man who will woo and win her, in spite of romance, Prince Charming and day dreams, will be just a good, everyday man, the sort of man who best knows how to make a woman happy.

She'll Be Proud to Cook

And he will be delighted with her ability as housekeeper and cook, and she will be proud and happy in pleasing him.

To-day if anyone showed her this forecast of the future she would be intensely disgusted. But it's a true forecast all the same. And the best of it all is that she will find more romance and fascination in this reality than there ever was in her rosiest day-dreams.

Take my advice, little maidens, and learn to wash dishes and to make bread, and how to broil a beefsteak and—crowning glory—how to make a good pie!

As for taking care of little brother, some day you will have babies of your own, and then you will realize how tired a mother gets once in a while. There is nothing very romantic about dish-washing, but you might as well learn how to do it properly.

Let me tell you the proper way. I know, for my mother made me learn, and I hated it just as much as you do.

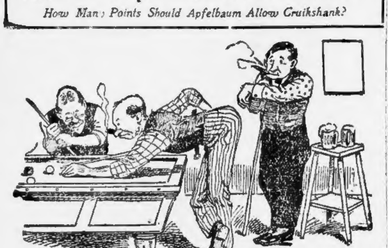
In the first place, scrape the dishes thoroughly, then hold each dish under running water for a second or two. Then place them all in lots of very hot soap suds.

This may sound foolish advice, but many a housekeeper does not know how to wash dishes properly. Remember that if you want to be a good housekeeper you must learn how to do the work yourself, as well as tell others.

Each week the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has a wealth of articles of especial interest to women. No woman can afford to miss next Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Can You Umpire This Billiard Match?

How Many Points Should Apfelbaum Allow Cruikshank?



PROFESSOR APFELBAUM found that he could give his friend Butterworth 19 points in a 100-point game of billiards and beat him. Butterworth just managed to give Cruikshank 29 points and a beating.

Then the question arose as to how many points A could successfully give C in a 200-point game.

Before the match comes off our puzzleists are left to answer the question!

How many points must Apfelbaum allow Cruikshank in a 200-point game?

One hundred puzzle books will be distributed among those who send best answers to "Puzzle Editor," in care of this paper.

There are five different puzzle books, so be sure to state which numbers you have already received. It is the greatest collection of puzzles, tricks and conundrums ever published. From week to week you will have an opportunity to win the entire set of five numbers.

CHICKEN CURRY WITH RICE

WASH one cup of rice; put it in a double boiler with one quart of chicken stock and cook until very tender, add one beaten egg and two tablespoons of cream, pack into a buttered ring mold, let stand until cold, then turn out on a dish, brush with beaten egg and brown delicately. Melt two tablespoons of butter, add one tablespoon of flour, one teaspoon of curry powder, one-third of a teaspoon of salt and a dash of cayenne; stir until well blended; add slowly one cup of chicken stock and flavor with a few drops of onion juice. Cook until smooth and thick, add one pint of cold chicken, cut into small pieces. Cook five minutes longer, turn into the rice border and serve. MARY J. FLYNN.

No. 86 Zeigler street, Roxbury.

APPLE SNOW.

PARE, quarter and core four sour apples, steam until soft, and rub through sieve. There should be three-fourths cup of apple pulp. Beat on a platter whites of three eggs until stiff, add gradually apple sweetened to taste and continue beating. Pile lightly on a glass dish, chill, and serve with boiled custard as follows:

BOILED CUSTARD.

Beat the yolks of three eggs slightly, add one-fourth cup sugar and pinch of salt, stir constantly while adding gradually two cups scalded milk. Cook in double boiler; continue stirring until mixture thickens and a coating is formed on the spoon. Strain immediately, chill and flavor with one-half teaspoon vanilla. Care must be taken when cooking this custard and not cook too long, or it will curdle. Should this happen, beat with an egg beater until of a smooth consistency. L. H. HILT.

No. 4 Thwing street, Roxbury.

SELF-FROSTING LEMON PIE

ONE lemon, juice and rind; one cup sugar, yolks of two eggs, two tablespoons of flour, one cup hot milk, small piece butter; stir in the beaten whites of the eggs and bake in slow oven forty minutes. If too hot the top will scorch. W. P. BROWN.

No. 16 Park street, Palmer.

SUET PUDDING

ONE cup suet chopped fine, one cup molasses, one cup milk, one cup raisins, three cups flour, one teaspoon clove, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt. Steam three or four hours; serve with sauce.

MRS. S. F. BLISS.

Willow street, Mansfield.

SQUASH PIE

ONE measured cup of sifted squash, not too dry; beat one egg, add four tablespoons sugar, pinch of salt, one-half cracker rolled fine, one and one-half cups sweet milk. Now stir in the cup of sifted squash and fill a deep plate, previously lined with pastry and cake; delicious.

Norway, Me. MRS. A. H. FOSTER.

"TOSCA," is a drama—a tale—of a woman, and two men that loved her, of torture, and of death at the end for all of the three.

More than an opera; for the tale drowns out and shouts above the music, even as Toscanini leads his strings and drums in a wave over and atop of the desperately soaring voices of the people in the tale.

But some few times the music and singing voices live above the story, and you forget any story, any thing in the world, but the beat and swing of exquisite voices and the creeping, gentle monotone of the orchestra carrying along beneath them.

And one of these times is this: When Cavaradossi, the artist lover of Tosca, sits at the little table in the hushed, cold dark before the dawn, on the platform of Castle Sant Angelo, where he dies at morning time—and sings his good-by to her. "I feel uncaring, and now I die despairing." Caruso's soft tenor tightens like fingers around your heart, and sends your breath a-fluttering and a chilly creeping a-lifting the hair of your head.

And another—the short little strains of the shepherd song—a hesitating, untamed melody, like the songs of outland people—folks of the rock and scant-grassed places within sounds of the sea.

And it dies too quick, like an exquisite string broken or a heart that has forgotten. This little passage is almost a torture, one's delight in it is so fine and keen. And when it dies, you can't recall, and hear singing in the back of your head, one little measure, for it is as elusive as outland and untamed people's songs always are.

The best dramatic crisis, the place where you clutch your own thumb tight and gather all your nerves together with your mind, and part your lips, and your eyes grow wide, is the killing of Scarpia.

The music is nothing here. And you forget it. Tosca slips a sharp little knife into Scarpia's breast, and he dies in a frightful struggle. Scotti's acting of it is well done. And when she is sure he is dead, she wrenches Cavaradossi's release from his stiffened fingers, washes her fingers daintily in a goblet of water, like a fine lady, dabbling her pink nails in a finger bowl, and breathes out all the candles save two.

She sets the two tall silver candles, with their flames wavering in the wind from the window, beside his white, still face, one on either side; drops the crucifix on his breast, and steals stealthily out, the last of her—her still face and the silent trail of her gown peering through the yellow slit that the warmth and merriment beyond makes at the crack of the door.

Eames, the beautiful nun-faced woman of ice, did her finest singing and her best acting here. Of course, I know it isn't proper to care if a singer of marvelous songs can act or not, but it's—it's more comfy when they do a little.

It was funny to rise and turn in your seat and look on all the Our-World Bettinas, with their wondrous and awful hair "dos" in the white, blinding electric light—straight out of the tragedy and death and love and soaring sound of "Tosca."

Women Are NOT Cats---By Dorothy Dix

A FAMOUS Italian philosopher has just written an essay on women, in which he asserts that all women are liars and cats, and that every word that a woman wastes on other women is a libel that would be actionable in a court of law, if law courts were not administered by men.

When man accuses woman of being a liar, she can at least retort, "you are another." Let it not be forgotten that Saphira is the wife of Ananias. Moreover, if women are given to telling tarradiddles, their dependence upon men, and the fact that they have to flatter and cajole everything they get out of their lords and masters, goes a long way toward excusing, if it does not justify, the feminine propensity to zigzag from the straight line of veracity.

Passing over this ancient calumny, however, we come to the second charge, equally old and baseless, that every woman is an Ishmael in a Directoire gown, whose hand is against every other woman's, and whose tongue leaves a blister wherever it touches a sister-woman.

This view of woman's inhumanity to woman is the commonly accepted one. When a woman is dealing with another woman, it would surprise nobody to see her turn into an actual, visible cat.

Women themselves are suspicious of each other, and forever on the lookout for the claws in the velvet paws; yet the whole charge that women are mean and cruel to other women is a slander that has not a leg to stand upon in reality.

Woman Can Trust Only Woman

Woman's best friend is woman. It is only women that a woman dare trust. It is women who comfort and stay each other in trouble, who wipe the tears from each other's eyes, and God help her who has no other woman to turn to when her hour of adversity comes!

People are always saying how much more loyal men are to each other than women are, and that you never hear a man say that Jim Smith "is such a nice fellow, but he dyes his mustache," as you sometimes hear a girl say that Mary Jones "is such a darling, but she gets her complexion at the drug store."

Maybe not, but neither do you hear Jones, who is in the grocery business, extolling the merits of Smith's flour, and potatoes, and sugar, and coffee, and telling what a nice, clean store his rival keeps, and what honest weight he gives.

Now, marriage is the business of a woman. The pursuit of some man is the pursuit of fortune and success and happiness, to her; and to expect her to waste much breath in blowing the horns of her competitors, and calling the man's attention to how pretty Mary is, or how sweet and amiable Jennie is, or what a good housekeeper Susan is, is to demand of her to be more than human.

When you consider how much women have at stake, they are enormously generous in the way they treat each other. They throw a lot more bouquets at each other than any two rival political candidates ever do; and the men are only struggling for a year or two's tenure of an office, whereas the women are fighting for something that will be a sinecure for life.

Men Only Fair Weather Friends

Men are, at best, but fair weather friends to a woman, and when she needs a real friend she has to turn to one of her own sex. As long as a woman is young and good looking and gay, a man is willing to spend his money on her and take her about and enjoy himself with her.

But let some real misfortune happen to her; let some grief come to her so devastating that she is simply a fountain of tears; let illness turn her into nothing but a hideous wreck of what she was, and where are her men friends then?

A note of sympathy, a bunch or two of flowers left at the door with a card—perhaps a check, if it is a case in which money can be offered—and then masculine friendship kisses its fingers and wafts you an adieu.

No matter how much a man likes you, he cannot bring himself to abide the sight of sickness and sorrow. He is sorry for you, but he will walk ten blocks rather than run the chance of meeting you, and seeing your tears, and having to listen to your troubles.

It is your women friend that comes to you in your hour of grief, when you feel that you must die if some warm human hand does not clasp yours. It is your woman friend that lets you weep upon her breast the tears that heal and comfort. It is your woman friend that listens with infinite patience while you go over, and over, the dreary litany of some sorrow that, somehow, it takes the sting from just to tell to sympathetic and comprehending ears.

No man would do that for a woman. No man would do that even for another man; and that is the reason that when a man gets into troubles he always goes to a woman.

What Women Do for Women

Turning from the individual woman to the mass, we have a thousand beautiful charities into which woman's love for woman has flowered. At the gates of every railroad station in every city in the land there stands a sharp-eyed, kind-faced matron, kept there by other women to try to save the foolish girl who has been lured from her home by the lights of the city.

In every city, in every town, there are hospitals where poor women may be doctored and cared for while sick; there are homes where old women may end their days in peace; there are nurseries where the working woman may leave her babe in safety when she goes out to labor of a morning; there are homes where the wayward girl's feet may be set again in paths of rectitude.

It is woman's hand that is held out always to the weak and unfortunate of her sex.

If you ask the working girl who got her her first place, nine times out of ten she will tell you that it was some woman. If you ask the struggling genius who gave her her first uplift, she will say that it was one of her own sex.

Every rich woman you can mention, almost, is playing fairy godmother to some girl of talent, and when the woman is not rich she does it anyway. It is Mrs. Smith, and not Mr. Smith, who gets up concerts and recitals to give some girl with a wonderful voice a year or two of training under the best masters, or to provide some needy young actress with clothes to take the part that has been offered to her in a play.

Generous in Praising Women

Then look at the generosity and the enthusiasm with which women acclaim any other woman who does things out of the ordinary. There is no matinee hero that has the following of woman that Maude Adams, or Ethel Barrymore, or Rose Stahl has.

There is no male writer that women run up into the seventh heaven of popularity like they do one of their own sex that they like. Men do not celebrate the success of members of their own sex with the beating of cymbals that women do when a woman achieves any distinction.

Surely, that alone ought to settle for all time the idiotic assertion that women are cats, and that the mere sight of another woman fills them with envy, spite and all uncharitableness, and causes them to get out their hammers.

Woman's best friend is woman. Every woman knows it, and any man who thinks the contrary takes a singularly superficial view of the situation, or else he has been mighty unlucky in the kind of woman that he has met. DOROTHY DIX.

wrong is rited. I tell you to pay the bill, sed the gas man. Leeve my hoam, sed Pa, & the gas man went away.

Curse Them All, Sed Pa

That is the way to talk to them, Pa toald Ma. But thay will turn off the gas, Ma sed, & then we will all starv. We cant cook with our elektrik lights.

I never thought of that, sed Pa. Curse them all, sed Pa, thats wat we git for living in N. Y. & after all the trubbel I went to, Pa sed, to lern to read the meter, jest to think that it didnt do any good after all.

Then Pa went down town & toal the peepul in the offis all his trubbels & wen he calm home he was laffing. This is a grate wurld after all, Pa sed. We aint the only ones wich has troubles. One of the men down to the offis lost his pay check playing the wheel, Ha Ha, & a other man wich drinks too much got last oaver in Jersey & his fambly didnt have thare thanksgiving turkey, Ha Ha, it isent such a bad old world if we can only keep smiling & find sum other peepul wich is in moar misery that we are.

I was feeling pritty blue wen I went down town, but the first thing I saw was a old woman carrying a load of wood on her hed & she tripped & fell. Ha Ha.

Ma Doan't See Why Pa Laffs

What is thare to laff about, sed Ma. I don't think that is anything to maik you cheerful. Oh, yes it is, sed Pa, & I saw a bum on Park Row that used to be a dramatik critik or something & then he rote a play & from that time on the poor fellow began to drift, Ha Ha.

Yes indeed, wife, Pa sed, whether the theeving gas peepul soaks us or not, thare is plenty of others which is in genyine misery & abject want, Ha Ha.

Ma looked at Pa very close & sed I am afrade it was spirits of sum sort which has raised your spirits.

A SPLENDID OPPORtunity to purchase kid booties for baby at a reduced price will be offered to Wednesday shoppers at the Glen Shirt & Collar Company's on Tremont street, when their full line of 50-cent goods will be marked to 39 cents a pair for one day's selling. Little booties in four-button and lace, also moccasins, colonial and ankle ties, made with soft soles and uppers of black, white, tan, pink or light blue kid, may be had from the smallest size up to four.

REMARKABLE VALUES IN FLOSS filled pillows may be had at James A. Houston's. Just seventy-five pillows made in twenty-two and twenty-four-inch sizes, covered with good quality cambric and extra well filled with the highest grade silk floss, will be offered at exceptionally low prices. The twenty-two-inch size will be sold to call customers for 40 cents, and the twenty-four-inch size at 45 cents. If you are making up fancy pillow covers, here is an excellent chance to purchase the inside floss pillow at a bargain. This sale is positively for one day only.

IF YOU ARE THINKING OF PURchasing flannelette underskirts shop at MacDonnell's Tremont Temple Store on Wednesday as they will sell their regular 50-cent skirts for one day at 37 cents each. A splendid assortment of stripes and plain colors in white, light-blue and pink, made with buttonhole stitched flounce, may be had at this price.

YOU WILL FIND SOME splendid values in combination suits, cover and drawer, and cover and skirts, at Henry Siegel's for 98 cents regular $1.50 goods. They are made from fine materials, trimmed with deep hamburg embroidery, cluny and val. laces forming yoke effect, ribbon and beading at waist and lace trimmed flounce on bottom. All sizes may be had.

A VERY PRETTY JEWEL CASE WILL be offered to readers of the Boston American to-morrow at Vorenberg's Novelty Shop for 50 cents that is splendid value and really worth $1. It is made of the popular gray finished metal, handsomely decorated in Cupid and floral designs, stands on four little supports and is nicely lined with pink or light blue silk. A limited number of these will be offered at this price.

A FANCY BOX FOR VEILINGS, gloves or handkerchiefs would be most acceptable as a Christmas gift and at Jordan Marsh's, in the art department, on the third floor, you will find some on sale for 25 cents that would be good values for 63 cents. Made with wood frame covered with plain art ticking and hand decorated in floral and bead designs, these boxes are surely bargains. Only one hundred will be offered at this price, while they last.

WEDNESDAY THE R. H. WHITE Company will close out all their slightly soiled 98-cent and $1.25 waists at 49 cents each. Among these will be found some very dainty models in hamburg an lace effects, containing a good range o sizes. Here is an opportunity to purchas a pretty waist at half price and less.

REBUKED.

"I wish I owned a farm," remarked father.

"A fine farmer you'd make," replied mother. "Why, you won't even take the trouble to gather up the tin cans in our little back yard."

Rich Values in Merchant Tailors' Uncalled-for Garments.

At the mines, coal is worth $2.50 a ton. In Boston, it is near $7. Price here is regulated by a fancy profit and cost of the hauling. When you buy merchant tailors' misfit and uncalled for garments, here, you are at "the mouth of the mine of values." Because these garments were refused or uncalled for, the tailors dispose of them to us for much less than cost. This tells why we can make such offers as Sack Suit, black Vicuna, elegantly tailored for $40 with the new dip front. Made by Kinsey of Broadway, N. Y. Our price $15. Overcoat, Irish Frieze, a snappy gray effect. Made to and with the high broad shoulder effect. Made to order for $45 by Jennings of Philadelphia. Our price, to the man it fits, $18. Over 4,000 other garments to select from, including Full Dress and Tuxedo Suits and Cravenettes. GEORGE'S TAILOR PARLORS, 14 Summer street, near Washington. Open evenings. In need of an auto coat or a fur or fur lined coat for street wear, we can save you one half of the prices asked by others.

Noble Music in Its Proper Setting

Boston's New Opera House Is a Big Stride in the Right Direction

The building in Boston, under the lead of Mr. Eben D. Jordan, of the new Boston Opera House means a great deal not only to music lovers now living in this city but to future generations.

Boston is regarded all over the world as the chief centre of musical art in the Western Hemisphere. The new opera house will tend to perpetuate its pre-eminence.

Not only will Boston have one of the grandest and most complete temples of music in the world but it is assured that the singers who will be heard there will be picked from the foremost rank.

When the opera house is completed it will resound to the strains of such noble voices as those of Caruso and Bonci, tenors, Emma Eames and Geraldine Farrar, sopranos, Emmy Destinn, Mme. Sembrich and other notables in the brighter galaxy of vocalists.

The management of the Boston Opera House and the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York have contracted to exchange singers and opera for three years. This insures at the outset the production of great operas with every detail blending to an absolutely harmonious whole.

The productions in this city will be worthy of the new opera house. They will be as near perfect in voice, orchestration, acting and mountings as art can make them.

The people of Boston are responsible for the honor paid to their city everywhere because of its taste in music and its cultivation of the art to a degree greater than has been attained anywhere else in this country.

This may be said without detracting in the least from the credit due New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, Milwaukee and other communities which have testified by achievement to the national love for art.

The Symphony Orchestra has added to Boston's fame. It has made it known and respected in Europe as no commercial or industrial undertakings could.

To Mr. Henry L. Higginson and Mr. Eben D. Jordan and their art-loving and public-spirited associates the future Bostonians will pay even a higher praise for their efforts to provide the highest class of music than is bestowed even now. Orchestra and opera house are monuments more endearing and enduring than anything else their munificence could well inspire.

Noble music is an influence for good in the life of any individual or any people. There is no mystery about it. It can be understood by any one who will take the trouble to listen to it seriously.

The great composers, whose best work is to be more adequately acted and sung in Boston than ever, have played as useful a part in the world as the great authors and the great statesmen and the great painters.

They have translated human emotions into a language which has no nationality and which can be understood by the fruit pedler in the street as well as by the graduate of a German university.

The new Boston Opera House will mean as much to this city as La Scala, perhaps the most famous opera house in Europe, save the great building erected at Beyreuth by Wagner, means to Milan. It will mean that the people of this city will hear the most brilliant soloists to be found and that these chief singers will be surrounded by a splendid chorus on a stage embellished with everything which will add to the beauty of the performance as a whole.

The new Boston Opera House will have a management possessed of the genius to gather upon its stage the world's best singers and to produce the works of the music masters with an attention to such details as acting, scenery and costuming which will make this city a place where operatic productions are the equal of any to be heard in any land on earth.

The Doll Days

By Wex Jones

HAVE you ever observed at this time of the year
How pale all the dolls in the windows appear?
These weeks before Christmas turn sawdust hearts cold,
For a doll never knows to whom she'll be sold.
Heigh-ho,
How is a doll to know?

NO wonder that worry leaves wrinkles and tracks
On an otherwise flawless complexion of wax;
No wonder a doll should feel all broken up
To think that perchance she'll be chewed by the pup.
Heigh-ho,
How is a doll to know?

OR perhaps the attentions a doll my expect
Will be missing, and dolly expire of neglect;
Or perhaps a bad brother, to test his new knife,
May let out her sawdust and thus end her life.
Heigh-ho,
How is a doll to know?

SO remember the weeks that they've passed in suspense,
While straining their eyes—dolls, you know, have one sense—
And wish a kind mother and safe home to each,
Where brothers, unkindness and pups cannot reach—
But heigh-ho,
How is a doll to know?

Danger. Keep Out!

By Winifred Black

ONE of the biggest banks in Kansas City is in trouble, serious trouble. The directors are quarreling, the president says he won't play, the cashier has resigned and all the depositors are almost scared to death for fear something is going to happen to their money.

All on account of a silly quarrel between two silly women and a lot of women as silly as themselves.

The two silly women are from the East. They went to Kansas City when their husbands became interested in the bank out there.

The two women didn't like Kansas City. They thought Kansas City women were "jays," and they said that Kansas City men were "Rubes." When they were invited to parties the two silly women went—and sat in corners and refused to meet Mrs. That and couldn't remember the name of Mrs. This, and then, Mrs. This and Mrs. That, instead of laughing good humoredly at the two poor provincial little nobodies, went home and told Mr. This and Mr. That that the husbands of the two silly women must leave the bank.

And now the whole town is taking sides with the different husbands, and the two silly women are just a little bit frightened when they come to think of what they will do when their husbands really do leave the bank and can't cut those particular coupons any longer.

What kind of men do they make out there at Kansas City, any way?

If I had a husband who would let me drag his business into my silly little personal quarrels, I'd get a divorce—and find a real man to marry.

Have you ever seen a powder mill, or a nitroglycerine factory, ladies?

I have. You always come upon them in a queer turn of a quiet road, somewhere off in the lonesome country, and there's always a sign at least twenty feet high, and that sign always says, in large and enthusiastic letters, "DANGER. KEEP OUT!"

If I were a man with a fool of a wife who had a social bee in her bonnet, I might let her make as big a goose of herself as she wanted to just to keep peace in the family.

But when she tried to bring her folly into my business I would put up a large and enthusiastic sign, "DANGER. KEEP OUT!" and if she didn't keep out there'd be an explosion.

The Value of Prayer

Guided by Reason, It Concentrates the Mind and Becomes a Magnetic Force to Attain One's Desire

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

A CRIMINAL who was pronounced insane some time ago declared that he made a league with the devil, because God had paid no attention to his prayers.

"They told me to ask and that my prayers would be answered," he said, "and I prayed and prayed, and not one thing I asked for was given, and so I made a bargain with the devil."

Other and more intelligent minds have grown pessimistic with doubt, or atheistical with faith, because the teachings of childhood regarding prayer were not verified by actual experience.

However devout you may be, dear madam, do not tell your child that each personal desire of the human heart and mind shall receive a literal, immediate answer from God. And do not deceive your child to establish its faith.

Do not bid your little girl to pray to God for a doll, and then leave her to imagine the gift sent direct from heaven when it ahrives.

Deceit Makes Unbelief

The day will come when the knowledge that you purchased the doll at a department store will cause her to question your veracity, and God's goodness, perhaps.

Far wiser will it be to say to her, "God works through the law of love, and your mother tries to be like Him and to give her child what will be best for her."

Just as He sometimes sends rain when we desire sun, and storm when we desire calm, so the parent must some time disappoint the child for some good and sufficient reason, not always easy for the undeveloped mind to understand. But just so far as it is possible will the loving parent try to grant the child's wish, and just so far as God deems best will He grant the prayers of His children.

The child who has never been taught to pray has been deprived of a priceless boon and privilege.

Prayer to the young mind is like the trellis to the young vine, lifting its tendrils from the dust and leading them upward. But even upon the trellis the tendrils need the training hand to guide and direct them.

Let Reason Guide

So the prayerful heart needs the guidance of reason and understanding. The boy who is taught to believe that a prayer for a sunny picnic day will meet with a response is puzzled when he learns that his father had been praying at the same time for rain to save the harvest from blight.

Such teachings belittle the ideal of the Creator of all things, and they are destructive to the growth of intelligent faith. Tell your children to ask for the protection of God's love, and care, and guidance each day, and to believe that it will be given. Say also that the answer to such prayers is often sent through the wisdom of the parents, who are able to act as God's messengers of love.

When you overhear your child's prayer for some toy and procure it, say to the little one, "I heard your request and I have made myself the agent of the good Father and answered it."

When it is a request you cannot grant, reason with the child and make it understand that all its wishes cannot at once be realized.

Like Magnetic Force

Teach your child early in life that prayer is a form of concentration, and that by keeping its mind fixed upon a certain purpose it helps to bring about the desired result.

Hosts of spiritual presences and messengers from other realms are attracted to the prayerful mind. Prayer is like the nameless force in the magnet ore, as mysterious as powerful.

He who is reared without the habit of prayer misses the inexpressible comfort of the invisible yet unmistakable celestial visitors.

To pray for wisdom, guidance and patience through life's journey is the best of prayers.

To pray for individual favors and blessings is the most selfish and unwise of pleas, since what we consider a blessing to-day may seem a curse to-morrow.

Lean on thyself, yet prop thyself with prayer;
All hope is prayer; who calls it hope no more
Sends prayer foot-sore forth over weary wastes,
While he who calls it prayer give wings to hope.
And there are spirits, messengers of love,
Who come to call, and fortify our strength.
Make friends with them, and with thine inner self.
Cast out all envy, bitterness and haste,
And keep the mind's fair tabernacle pure.
Shake hands with pain, give greeting unto grief
Those angels of disguise—and thy glad soul
From height to height, from star to shining star,
Shall climb and claim best immortality.

Things to Pray For

Just as the approach of an unhealthful portion of the physical body to the wonderful power of radium destroys disease, so the approach of the disturbed mind to the radium of prayer destroys fear and doubt and melancholy.

Pray much. But pray broadly and intelligently, and do not ask the Infinite Forces to take the management of your trivial affairs, but for the wisdom and guidance to manage them yourself, and patience to wait for the results you desire.

SAY THAT WAS A FIERCE THROW DOWN PERKY GAVE US LAST NIGHT WHEN HE DIDN'T SHOW UP AT THE THEATRE.
BEASTLY LUCK, WHEN WE KNOW A REAL LIVE LORD AND NOBODY'LL BELIEVE IT.
YES, THE GIRLS MUST THINK BY THIS TIME WE'RE ONE GOOD PAIR OF FABRICATORS.
1
HELLO PERKY - SAY YOU'RE ALL RIGHT YOU ARE. WHY DIDN'T YOU SHOW UP AT THE THEATRE LAST NIGHT. THE GIRLS WERE AWFULLY DISAPPOINTED, AND IT PUT US IN A VERY BAD LIGHT.
YES, THEY WONT BELIEVE US NOW WHEN WE SAY WE KNOW LORD PERKINSON.
SORRY OLD CHAP, BUT I COULDNT HELP IT.
2
YES OLD MAN, TO SQUARE YOURSELF YOU OUGHT TO PAY THEM A CALL AND EXPLAIN YOUR ABSENCE. LET'S GO UP TO THEIR HOUSE NOW.
YES, THEY'RE CHARMING GIRLS AND REALLY YOU SHOULD MEET THEM.
3
AH LITTLE ONE ARE THE MISSES MILLIONBUCKS AT HOME?
NO SIR, THEY HAVE GONE OUT. WILL YOU LEAVE YOUR CARD SIR?
FETCHING LITTLE GIRL - WHAT!
PERCY IS SIMPLY IRRESTIBLE WITH THE LADIES ISN'T HE?
4
GEE BOYS, IT'S TOO BAD - THE GIRLS ARE NOT IN. WE'LL HAVE TO LEAVE OUR CARDS.
BY JOVE - I LEFT MY CARD-CASE HOME! I'LL HAVE TO WRITE MY NAME ON YOUR CARD.
DID YOU LOOK IN ALL YOUR POCKETS?
5
I SEE BY YOUR CARDS, YOU BOYS HONORED US WITH A CALL YESTERDAY. WHY DID YOU WRITE LORD PERKINSON'S NAME ON YOUR CARD? SURELY YOU DON'T EXPECT US TO BELIEVE HE WAS WITH YOU.
REALLY PERCY, A JOKE CEASES TO BE FUNNY IF KEPT UP TOO LONG.
A-HONOR BRIGHT MISS MILLIONBUCKS, HE WAS WITH US.
HONEST HE WAS MISS ETHEL
